

CHAIN
1973

“Introducing the 55th Link of the 1973 Chain, Lane High School, Charlottesville, Virginia”

The school year resumes with the traditional sight of suntans and hotpants. The guidance department labors furiously to complete senior class ranks. The prospects for a new year excite student, teacher and administration alike. Athletes spend grueling hours conditioning themselves. Clubs hasten to organize and start the fight for survival. Class officers begin their Top Secret meetings with the administration. For a while we fool ourselves into believing this will be a fantastic year! We're really going to work. As the sunny days fade away, so does our interest in school. Apathy compels us to seek interests outside the school. Politically involved students set out to work for their favorite Presidential candidates. After school and weekend jobs offer the chance for a place in the working world. The ecology class takes a few days off from school for a trip to the Everglades, while those at home continue the paper collections and ZPG meetings. And as you can see folks

We've got an outstanding show to entertain you.—A MONDAY THROUGH SUNDAY

CIRCUS.—Our acts include some of the most fantastic in the world. We display the latest fashions in clothes, shoes, and cosmetics. We even have talent for you, too: artists, athletes ranking high in the Commonwealth District, a superior band and jazz ensemble. Lorraine Duisit, a singer, records a 45 single LP and our chess club feels ready to rival Bobby Fischer. Dirty lockers, the P.A. System, band practice and noisy lunch periods are all a part of the daily routine. People are an important part of it too:

smiling faces, a boyfriend or girlfriend, classmates
to talk to in study hall,
some relevant teachers,
our friendly librarians.

As never before, we see boys in high-heeled shoes and baggy pants; girls with brightly painted fingernails, palazzo pants, and clogs. Even the teachers adhere to the fashions. The women wear midis, pantsuits, and jeans. The men wear corduroys, hiking boots and baggy pants, and some even sport moustaches or beards.

The voting populus re-elects President Nixon. The flag flies at half-mast for the death of ex-President Truman, then less than a month later for the death of ex-President Johnson. The U.S. withdraws military support from Vietnam and the prisoners of war return home. Lane observes National Black Culture Week with guest lecturers and student-planned assemblies.

And everyone at Lane becomes involved in something—the school, the community, or jobs.

School activities consume much time and energy, if we become involved. Diverse activities allow each person to exhibit his or her special talent. Cheerleaders practice during the week to prepare their shows for football and basketball games. Blacks spend every afternoon for a month preparing a cultural play. Girl and boy athletes endure great physical and mental pressures training for the big finale. The newly-formed jazz ensemble rehearses many evenings and mornings developing new techniques. Student officers exhaust themselves planning activities to heighten the morale of the school. Publications' staffs frantically rush to meet each deadline. Clubs scheme to raise money for their activities. Thus, many people find their place in school activities, while we see others seeking a niche in community affairs. Folks, these kids are trying to improve the social, political, and religious aspects of the community by performing various volunteer acts. The Big Brother-Big Sister program enlists the time of many students, who want to help underprivileged children. Ecology forces gather to bundle newspapers for recycling in order to save our trees. Wishing to develop their talent, our actors perform in many Children's Theatre Productions. Six of our students concerned with the welfare of Lane are representatives on the Student School Board. This newly-formed board bridges the gap between the School Board and the students. Educational activities at the University of Virginia attract many students wishing to broaden their knowledge. Lecturers such as Hubert Humphrey, Senator Hugh Scott, Sonya Sanchez, and Dick Gregory draw huge crowds. Church youth groups offer fellowship and security through projects and recreational activities. They prepare fund-raising dinners, go Christmas caroling and ice-skating. The need for money, though, forces some students to find paying jobs.

Even though jobs are scarce in Charlottesville, we have many Lane students working. The responsibility of having a job and going to school places tremendous pressure upon the students. Participants in the Cooperative Industrial Training Program have an abbreviated school day in order to spend more time at vocational jobs. The University of Virginia offers many part time jobs in Charlottesville. Positions are available in labs, offices, and the dietary and nursing departments. High school help eases the dinner hour rush at many restaurants. Bagging groceries is a profitable enterprise at both privately and corporately owned stores. An attractive fringe benefit in working at a department store is the discount on clothes.

Well, as you can see, our circus is packed with excitement and entertainment for you. Our actors have spent tiresome and frustrating hours preparing this fantastic show for you. So relax and let us entertain you.

Getting ready

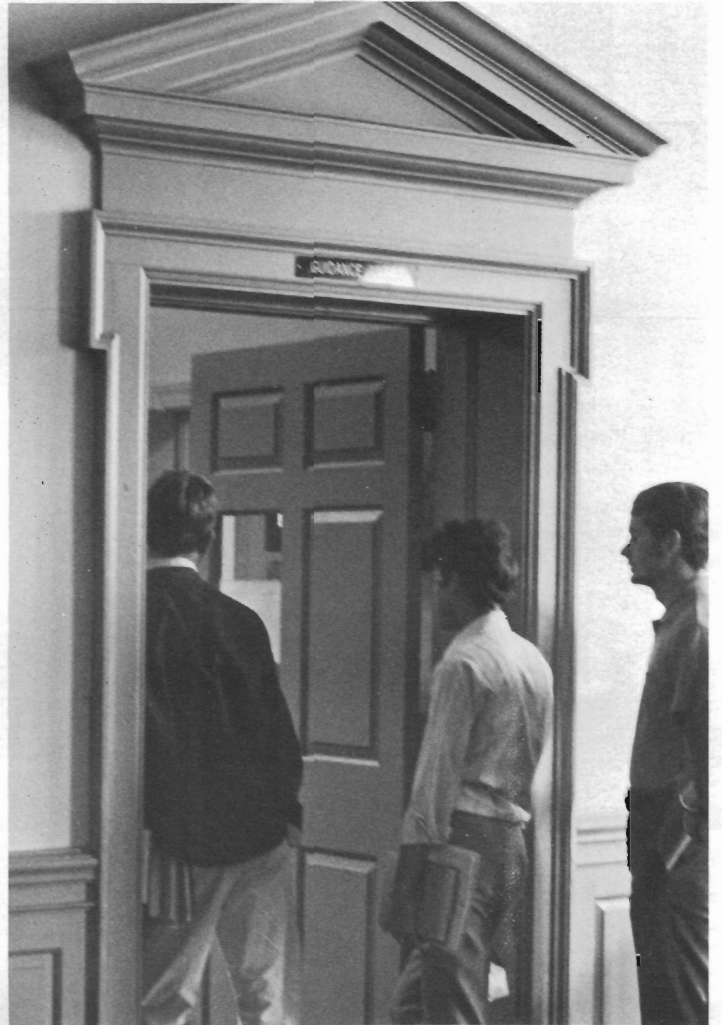

Summer was not without its moments. While most were pre-occupied with summer jobs, shopping treks downtown, or just relaxing, Lane was busy preparing for the coming school year. The marching band, under its new director, sought to regain its rhythm. The football team sought to regain its winning form and students sought early schedule changes. With all the good times, one could not forget the destruction of hurricane Agnes which marred an otherwise perfect summer.

Going back to school—again

The space in time between September 4th and 6th is called back to school day. The freedom of spirit known as summer living abruptly ends. Becoming assigned to new books is the order of the first few days. The sudden demand for bike locks is truly amazing. Students find out that Lane may or may not gladden the heart. September, which manages to hold the heat of August, is just the time to become acquainted with the crowdedness of the lunchroom. If you learn no other rules, you learn that you should keep quiet during firedrills. Practicing for marching band, getting gym suits, paying towel fees, running down stairs, changing classes, getting to class late, and staying after school for being late serve only to get the student accustomed to daily high school life; a necessary evil. How does a student become educated and still retain his sanity? He daydreams, of course.

The year has begun

The rest of the week doesn't really improve. We all enter into a state of lethargy. If you want to play football you have to practice. We become accustomed to marching up and down stairs on "firedrill day". Homework has to be done and if you can't do it at night you have to do it just before class. Zeroes are devastating so you do all your art assignments on time. If you are a cheerleader you go to cheerleading practice. But wait! Does this have to continue, seven days a week, fifty-two weeks a year, for twelve years? No it does not have to continue. Weekends, those lovely, all too short holidays, offer us some relief. Every Friday weary students get to pack all the week's accumulation and go home for a fine weekend; only to return Monday morning.

Lane's defense prevents scoring

There's something more than just the enjoyment of the sport at Lane, there's the shaping and constant building of character and discipline. I don't think you will find that at any other school, simply because Lane is the only school with the coaches, Theodose and Bingler.

Lewis Whitlock

When people take an interest in the games, it helps a lot on the field.

Tommy Phipps

We had great leadership from Sloan, Copeland and Green. It was an experience I will never forget.

Woodbridge game brings 100 win for coaches

Theodose, Bingler, Wood, and Jones are not just adding more victories to Lane's record, but are adding more good men to our society, men who will never quit or walk out on you when the going gets rough.

John Mimms

After the Woodbridge game, the seniors wondered, what was going to happen next, and where are we all going to go . . .

Wally Mahanes

The game I remember most was the Woodbridge game. We were going for our 100th win for the coaches. It was the seniors' last game on Lane's field; it was father's night and we all wanted to stay on top of the district. We were really up for the game. The greatest thing was being able to win number 100 for Mr. Bingler and Mr. Theodose, then shaking their hands at the end of the game.

Clubs broaden interests

The Chess Club has been active its first year. We showed Cool Hand Luke in the auditorium and we weekendend in D.C. to play in a three state tournament (and did well) and crunched every school in the district, except Walker.

Tom Cool

The Flag Squad is something new to Lane, and it kind of livened up the marching band. I enjoyed being in the Flag Squad because of meeting people, going places, and early morning practices.

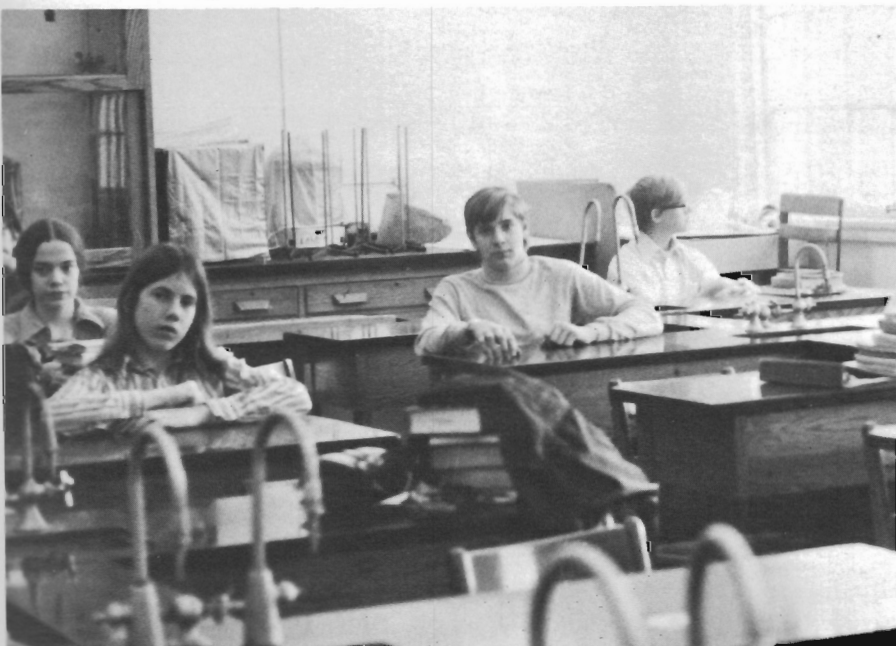

Nan Wells

The German Club at Lane has had a very active year. Under the sponsorship of Ms. Price, we have raised quite a bit of money by selling German candy (mostly Gummi Bears). The Gummi Bears were a big success, not only did they taste good, but were a lot of fun to play around with.

Pam Cole

The Science Club had many guest speakers at their meetings who gave interesting lectures. It's good to know that the professors at the University care enough to come and help.

The zoo presents a circus

Perhaps each year as a group of students gather together to publish the CHAIN they are a bit in awe of the work and the responsibility involved. They have good reason to be. It's not easy to draw the book together into a reflection of the year—a composite of students and life at Lane High School.

The advisor and editors plan. The staff makes suggestions. Pictures are taken, copy is written. Layouts are drawn and pasted. The individual staff members run the gamut of emotions during the year—acceptance—rejection—explosion—despair—elation—and in the end, satisfaction.

This year's CHAIN is a reflection of the year as seen through the staffs eyes, led by Sarah Shepherd, Danny Wood, Clair Holland, and I. Together with our staff and Mrs. Rash, our adviser, we have forged the 55th link of the CHAIN as our legacy, sort of, to Lane. We think we have created a link that will be read and enjoyed today and 20 years from today.

Lane Harriers race through countryside

Cross-Country is a fantastic sport which does not receive the recognition it deserves, especially at Lane, where very few, if any, students come to the meets.

Willie Griffin

We had tremendous potential due to the number of outstanding sophomores who ran this year. With this potential and depth, I expect Lane's Cross-Country team will grow better and excel.

Davis Noble

We had good leaders in captain Steve Jammé and Coach Bob Willson.

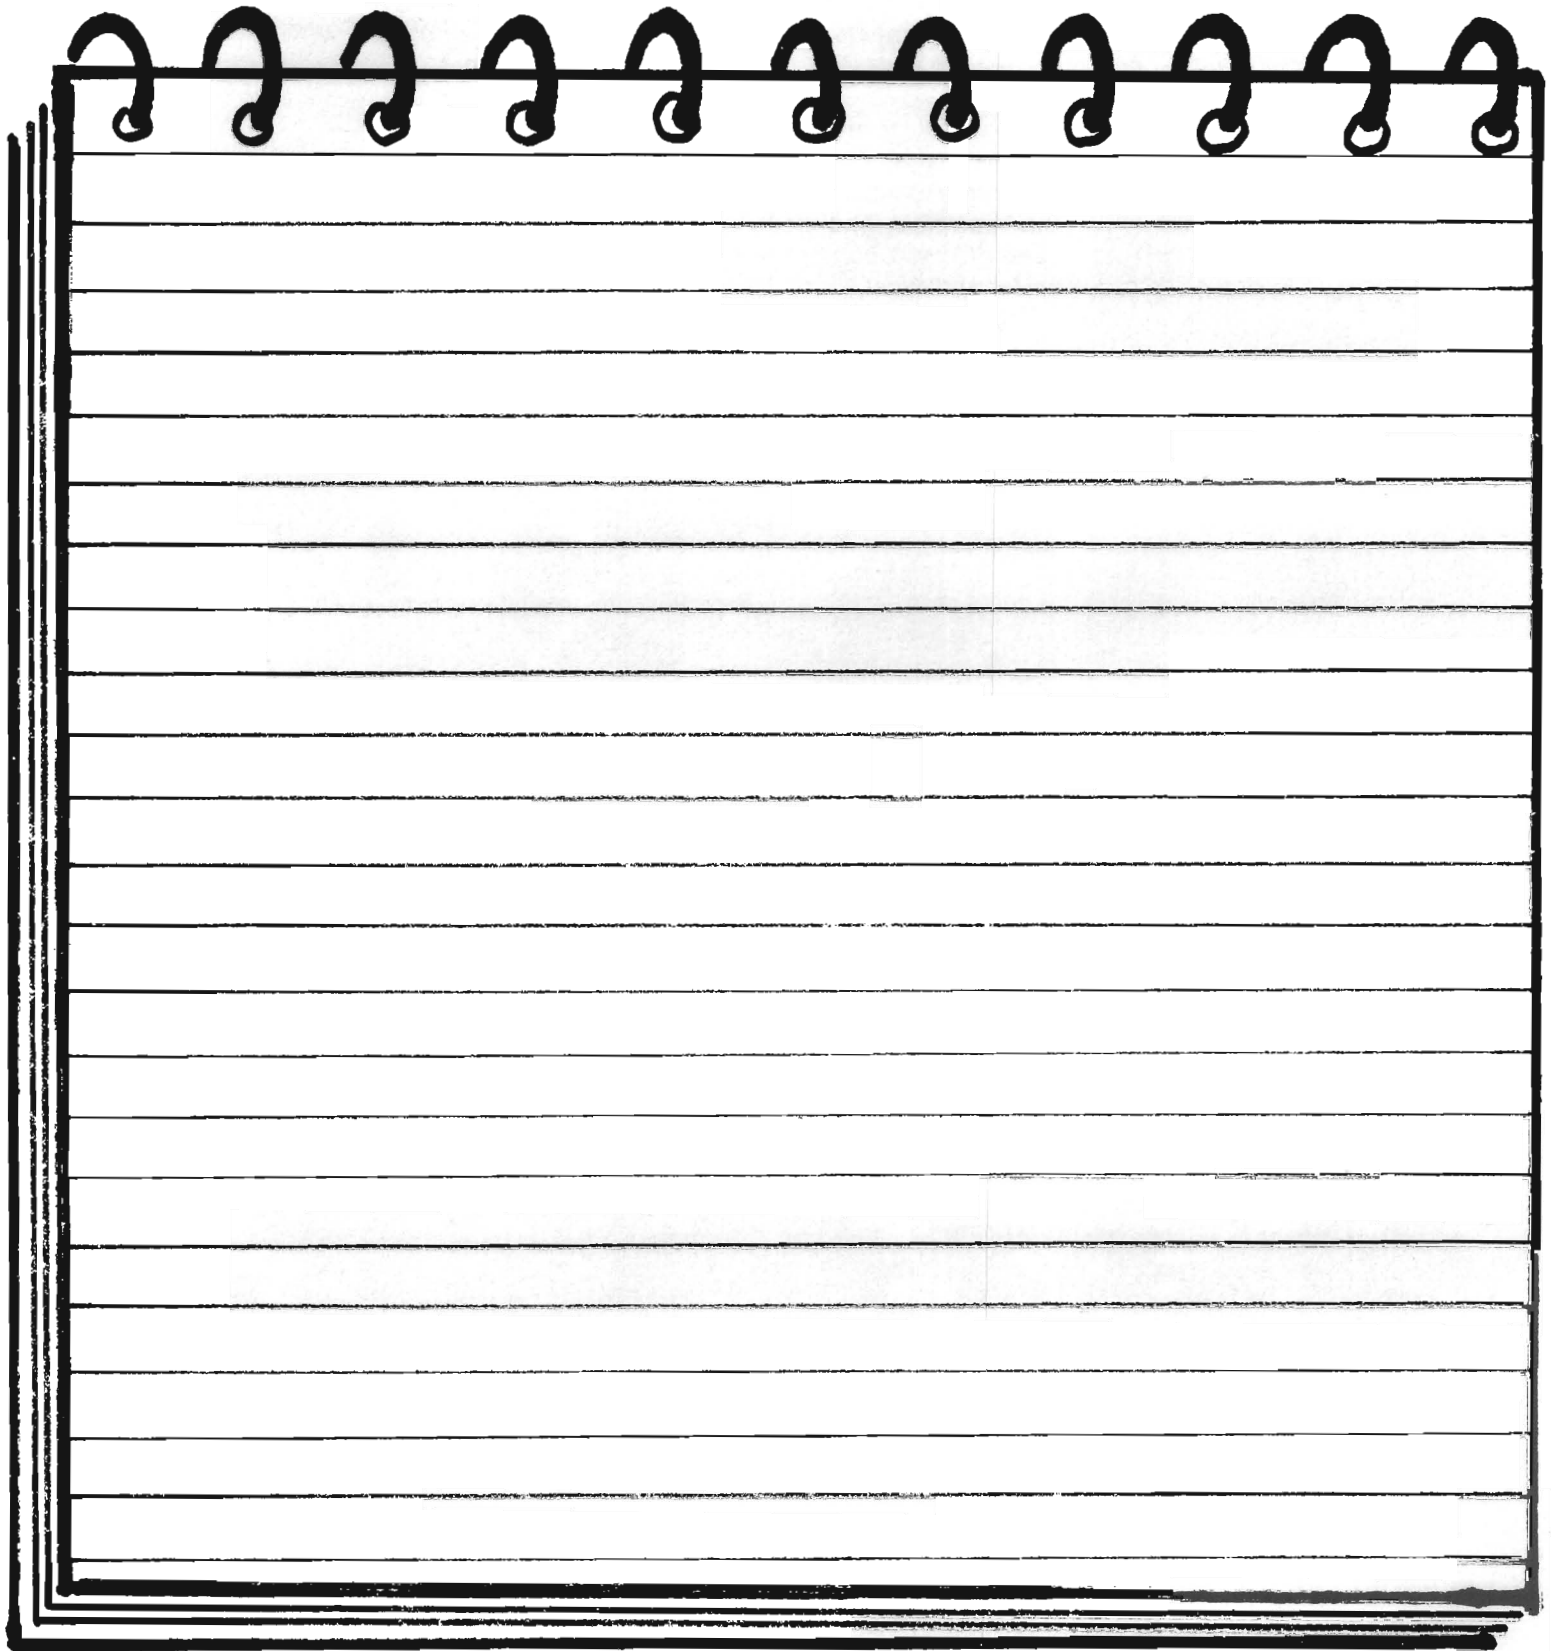

Gary Palmer

We had the best Cross-Country season this year. I was proud to be a part of it. The juniors and seniors were quite an inspiration to me.

Performing according to your needs

A circus has come to Lane with performers of every type. This three-ring event is nothing new to Lane's classrooms. Although there are new variations to the acts, they are still basically the same ones performed forty years ago. Each student has his own specialty in which he excels. No matter what is introduced by the ringmaster, commonly referred to as the teacher, every student performs his own act. The acts vary from serious study to informal socializing, depending upon the students' reasons for being in class.

Lane's classrooms give each student the opportunity to pursue his own desires. The choices include socializing with classmates, gaining invaluable experience, and striving for new knowledge. The students searching for better understanding find the classroom circus difficult to enjoy. Their portion of the circus is climaxed by concentration, hard work, and hours of study. Of course, some students have never been interested by any kind of circus, so they just quietly snooze through class, or don't attend at all. But that is what makes the classroom a three-ring circus. Everybody is performing according to his own needs.

LHS coaches honored in football

"Each person must make a dedication, a sacrifice for the whole of the team. An outstanding individual performance is but a reflection of this dedication. The sacrifice is not confined to a Friday night game, but to each practice, his studies, and other life disciplines. Football is a game of discipline; of the body and of the mind.

I have played on two teams, one struggling to have a winning season and the other, Lane, a top contending team in the state. Both teams had just as good personnel as the other, but the difference between them lies in the coaches. The coach provides the motivation, discipline, morality, and intestinal fortitude of the team. The coach must be the master of the game, knowing the mechanics of both offense and defense.

But the most important thing a coach does is communicate a philosophy of the game and possibly life to his players. This is the aspect of Lane that I noticed and admired the most; a philosophy that wraps up all the substance of the coach and the goals of his players. The philosophy conveyed to me was this, 'This is my last play in the game. I might break a leg and never be able to play another game. I must make this play one that I can look back on and be satisfied that it was my last.'

This is life."

Dale Bauman

J.V. team struck with apathy

The transition from Junior High to High School is more than most students expect. The conditioning program is more thorough at Lane. One is more disciplined as a member of a group and not as an individual. J.V.'s are a lot like "little fish in a big pond". The students find too much else to do; dating, walking girlfriends home, working and studying. They don't realize that the social condition in sports is an excellent basis for their life in the future. A sacrifice must be made to go out for sports, especially J.V. sports. Their fellow students do not give very much recognition and praise. J.V. sports are the training for Varsity sports; then the glory and praise comes in.

Student government acts

This year the S.C.A. officers tried an innovation in selecting its membership. Students who were interested wrote a paper stating their reasons for wanting to become members. Selections were made from these. Better representation and more ideas resulted from this.

Most S.C.A. committees were formed again: Projects Committee, Club Coordinator, Teacher Relations Committee. Under the leadership of Donna Cash, the S.C.A. successfully completed Homecoming plans, the Lane Spirit Chain and other projects.

What a day for music!

Many late sleepers were awakened October 14 as bands from all over the state joined to entertain at the University of Virginia's half-time show.

The band has improved greatly under the leadership of Mr. Vince

Tornello. Hours of hard work has brought about a change in the band's formation. Thomas Dickerson's high stepping antics gave the band a new spark. The addition of the flag squad was the crowning touch.

Carnival comes to Lane

When I first heard about the Chain Carnival, I didn't expect it to be much. Our Player's Club booth was just thrown together at the last minute. We weren't very enthusiastic about it, but after we got into what we were doing and people got interested in our booth, we had a lot of fun.

Carolyn Dodd

The Chain Carnival was a mixture of spirit, friendship and fun for all. I enjoyed working in it and being a part in helping Lane's clubs earn money. Although attendance wasn't what it could have been, I feel that it was a success for both the clubs and the people who participated.

Linda Bradshaw

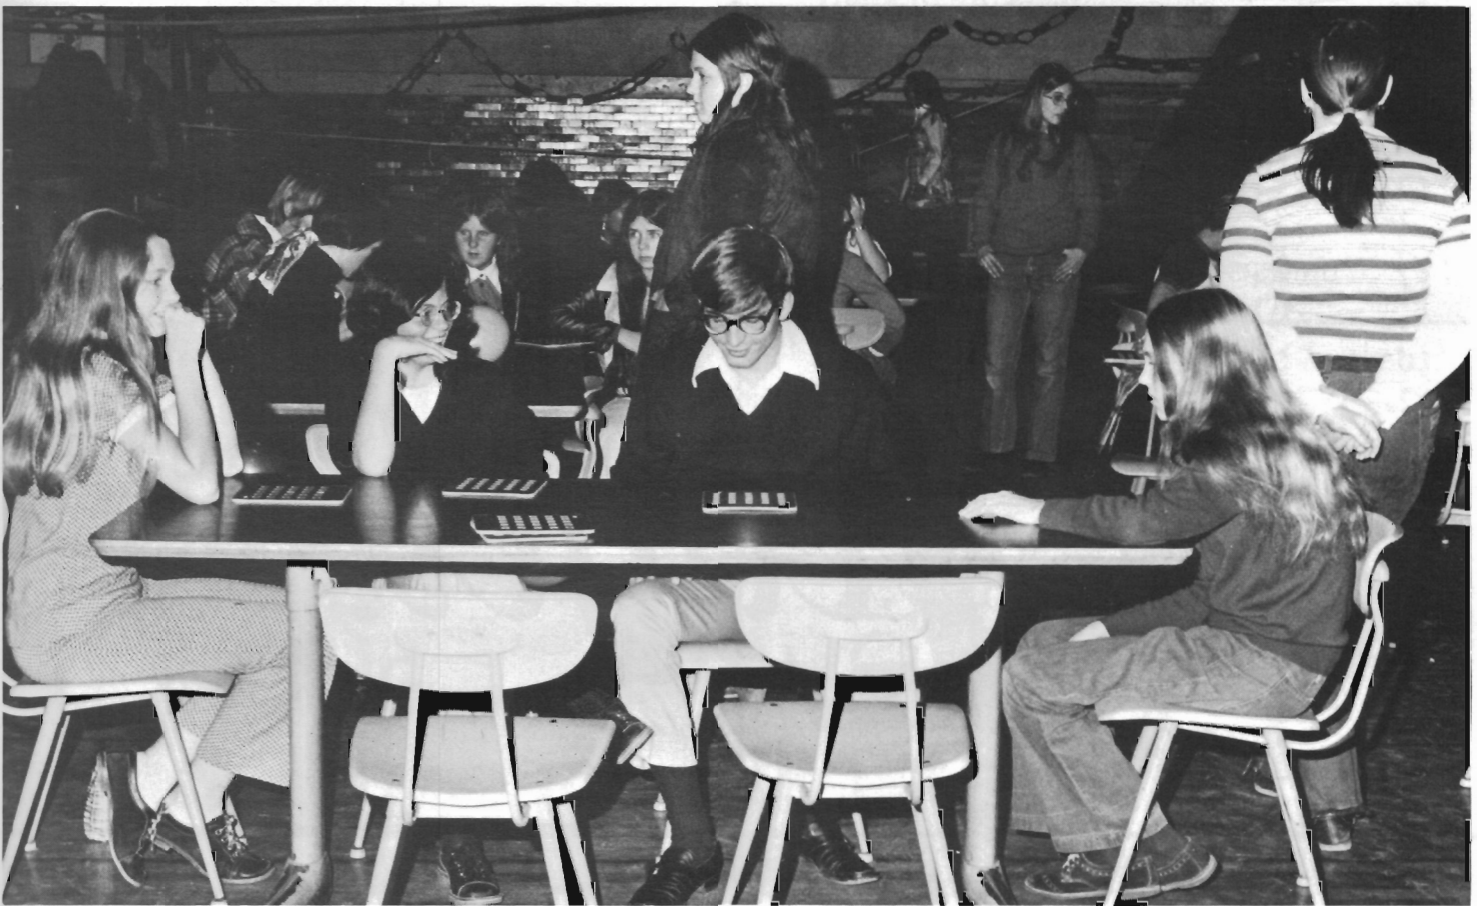

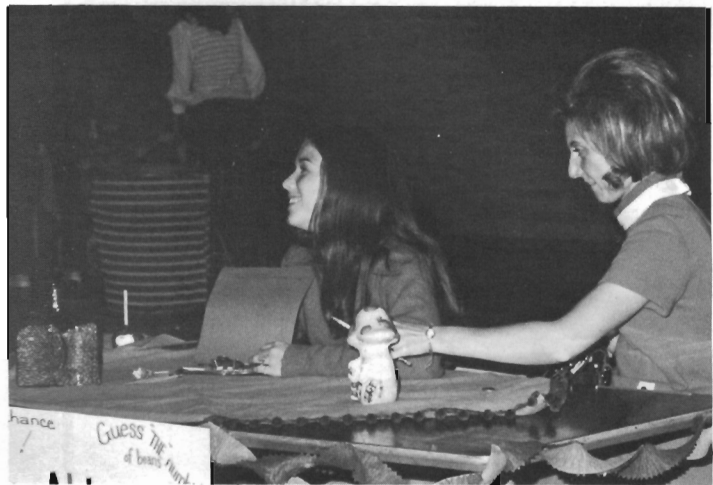

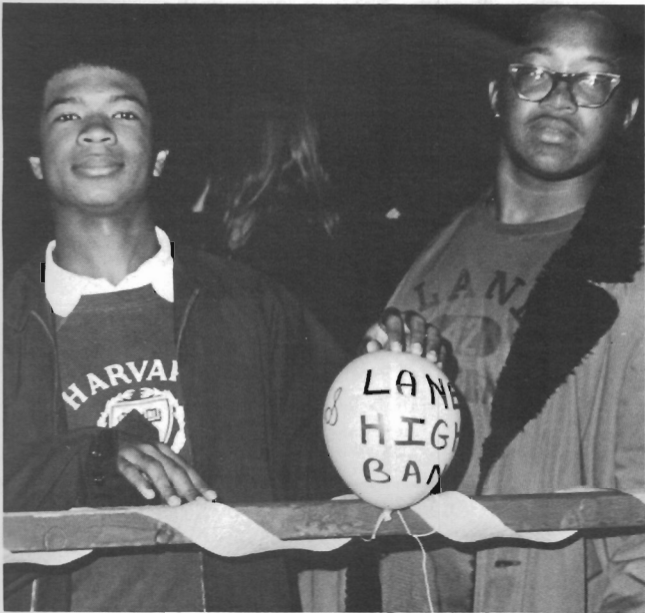

I don't feel that there was enough participation on the part of clubs and on the part of the student body. However, I do feel those who took part enjoyed themselves and the overall idea was good.

Debbie Hickerson

The Carnival represented a successful effort of the various clubs to get together and demonstrate their school spirit.

Nixon wins by a landslide

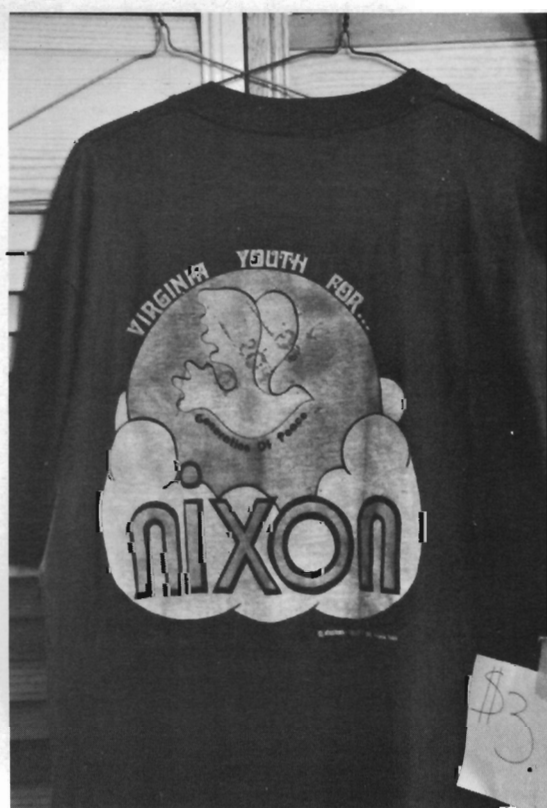

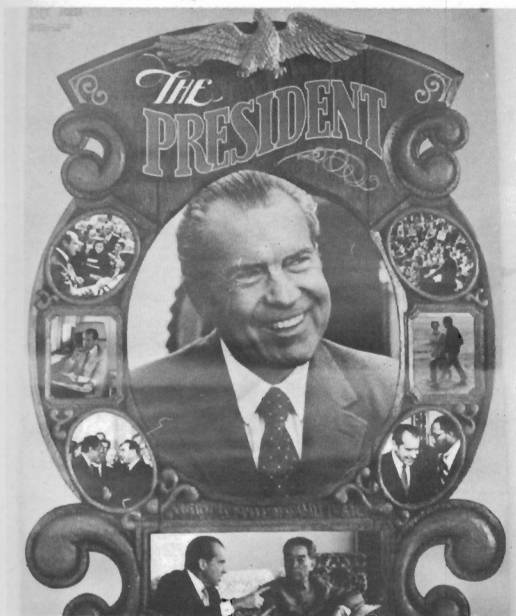

The day was bright and sunny, a good day for an election. Many people, though, did not bother to vote. The issues were relevant and the campaigns began spiritedly but the excitement gradually wore off.

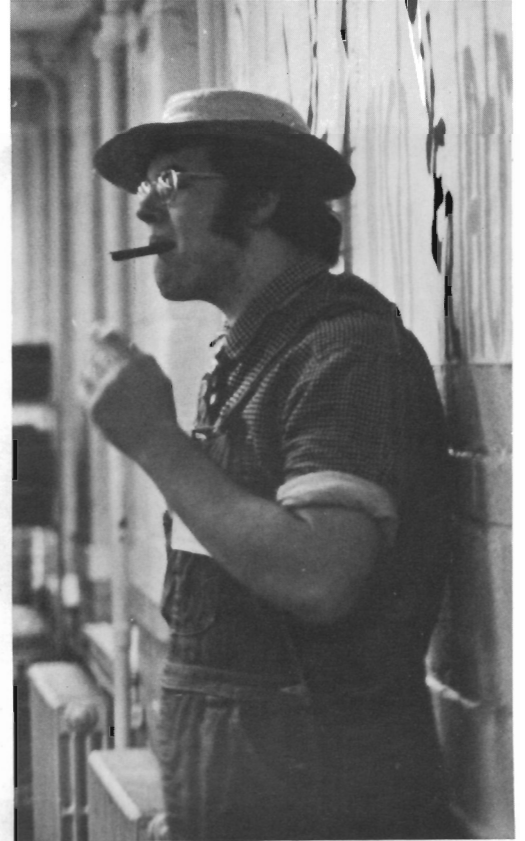

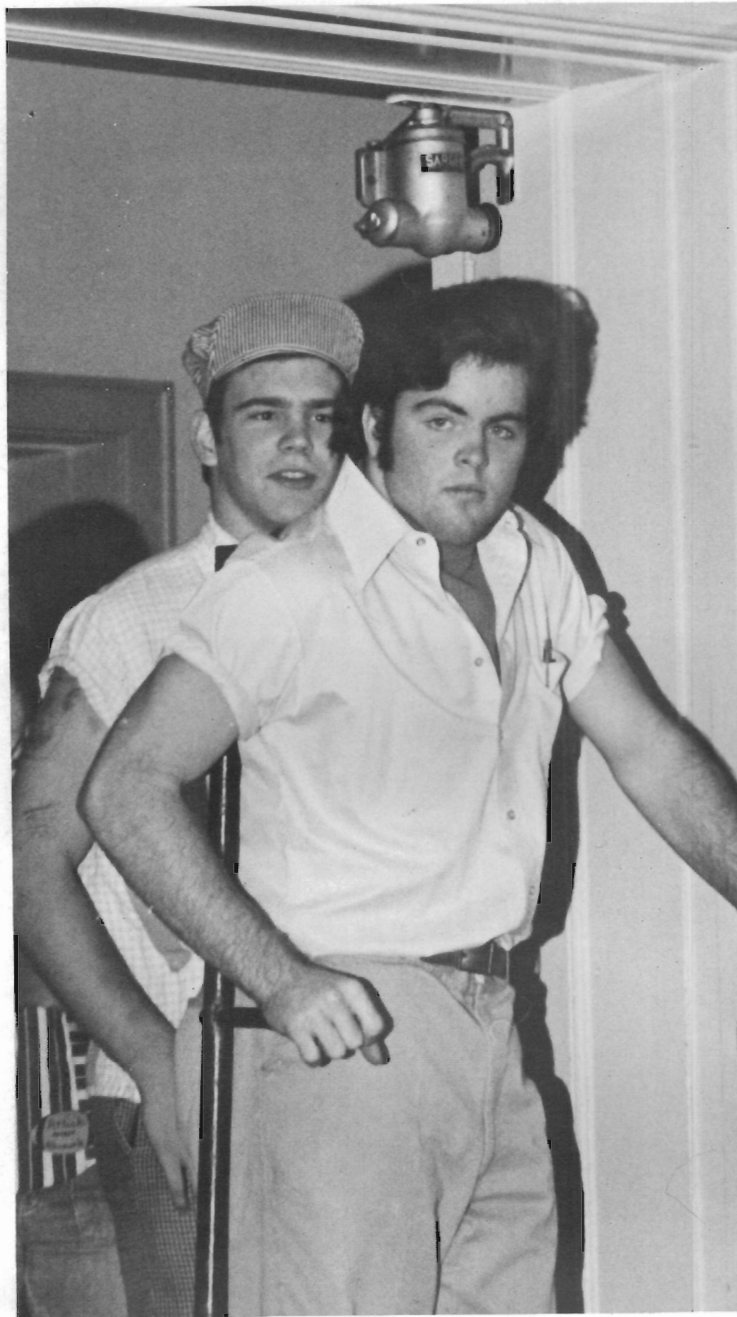

The candidates ranged from very liberal to very conservative. Running for President on the Democratic side were George McGovern and Sargeant Shriver. The President, along with Spiro Agnew, was running for reelection. For Senator, the Republicans nominated Bill Scott and Bill Spong ran for the Democrats. The Democratic candidate for Congress was Murat Williams. The Republican nominee was J. Kenneth Robinson. From the above list all victors were Republican.

This election was different from those of the past. Eighteen year olds were now allowed to register and vote. However, only fifty percent of the people between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one even registered. Of these only forty-six percent bothered to vote. No one can say why there was so much indifference. We can only hope that the next national election will yield a better turnout of young voters.

Black Knights continue to dominate Patriots

After the game this year, I was very elated by the fact that after playing Albe for three years, we had never lost to them.

Steve Busch

The thing that makes us successful is not that we are all sadistic automatons, but that every member of the team sacrifices part of himself for the sake of achieving what we all desire. All of us have our own philosophy of life and of football. The important thing is that for one point in time, everyone co-operates and works for a unified effort. Our success is proof that a team of varied viewpoints can come together to win.

Cheerleaders instrumental

Lane High School cheerleaders again were instrumental in producing the necessary spirit to keep Lane's athletes winning. A lot of practicing and creating new cheers, along with cheering at the games kept them working hard. Pep rallies, signs around school, and bus trips, all organized by the cheerleaders, kept student support and spirit high throughout the year.

Homecoming '72 started out well with an exciting 28-27 victory over rival Albemarle. That night after the game, the couples headed for the gym to be "So Happy Together." Brother Love provided a medley of music as Elva Mason was crowned Homecoming Queen. The enjoyable atmosphere contributed to a great weekend.

Publications relate to students

It has been said that although the Bumblebee is not published by literal bumblebees (or honeybees, for that matter) these industrious little creatures could conceivably do just as good a job as the present staff. Upon hearing this, the staff quivered their wings and angrily denied the accusation. They attribute the difficulty in extracting good material from Lane to student apathy, overdoses of may-I-have-your-attention-please, the radical influence of the U. Va. students, the rising prices of rolls, and too many broken pencil sharpeners. Nevertheless, the busy students fly around collecting prose, "wit" and poetry from flowering artists in the vicinity. In May (lo and behold) the sweet juices of their labor drip from their psychotic hive at 50¢ a copy.

Tjinta Gaston, Editor

This school term the Lanetime has attempted and succeeded in giving more students an opportunity to actively participate in their newspaper. By having student polls, feature articles, and editorials, the Lanetime has opened the doors to student communication here at Lane. As a result, the students and teachers have contributed more to the newspaper this year than in previous years.

Jazz introduced to Lane

This year marked the birth of jazz at Lane. Assistant band director, Mr. Vincent Tornello, organized and developed the Lane Jazz Ensemble in the fall with members of the Concert Band, the Orchestra and a volunteer. They got together before school to rehearse in the auditorium. Every morning while they practiced, the Ensemble had a receptive and appreciative audience. Despite its short existence, the Jazz Ensemble gained statewide recognition. In district competition, it received a superior rating along with seventh place and an excellent rating in state competition. The Ensemble also provided entertainment at the Lane-Albemarle basketball game, University of Virginia swimming meets and the Atlantic Coast Conference Swimming and Diving Championships.

During this first year, the members, through hard work and a dedicated director, produced an admirable group. The favorable reception by students and teachers will hopefully give the Lane Jazz Ensemble the incentive to accomplish even more in the future.

Seniors score second victory

Fall is the time of year when football excitement fills the air. Sloan and Copeland become the heroes and Lane finishes the season with a big win over Albemarle. After the thrill of varsity football, the girls have their big chance. As usual cold and rainy weather hinders afternoon practices and no one wants to attend Sunday workouts. Finally the spirit grows as the juniors and seniors hassle over publicity and jerseys. After weeks of jumping jacks, drills, running laps and scrimmages, the powder puff teams are ready.

The exciting day arrives when Lane gets turned upside down with Indians raiding Cowboys after the colorful war dances. The crowded halls and cafeteria provide the opportunity for watergun battles despite the ban put on them early in the day. The day ends with the ultimate showdown on Lane's field. The seniors, determined to remain undefeated, face the upset-minded juniors.

While the girls huddle, the boys begin the sideline action by impersonating female cheerleaders. With passes, secret plays and interceptions, the seniors slip by the junior line for an eight to zero victory. Thrilled by their second victory, the seniors congratulate the juniors' efforts and good sportsmanship.

More support . . .

The girls' basketball team in their second year of existence in modern Lane history continued its winning tradition. Although the schedule was lengthened and injuries were plentiful, the girls remained dedicated to representing Lane on the hardwood.

Smartly dressed in bright orange uniforms, the lady netters ran, dribbled and shot their way to a respectable 6-3 season.

The climax of the season was a home victory over the Albemarle girls, but we missed participation in the district tournament by losing to them a week later. We might have won that game if we had had the support of the student body. We have excellent coaching, talented players and desire, yet we need school support to remain winners.

The five graduating seniors leave Lane with a compiled record of 12-3. This record shows that athletics play a definite roll in the development of men's and women's lives.

Nancy Frank Co-captain

Next year we will have to try and overcome our inexperience and support could be a major factor.

Penny Norford

The school body and the cheerleaders were not interested in the girls' basketball season. We hope we have more support in Spring.

Becky Bishop

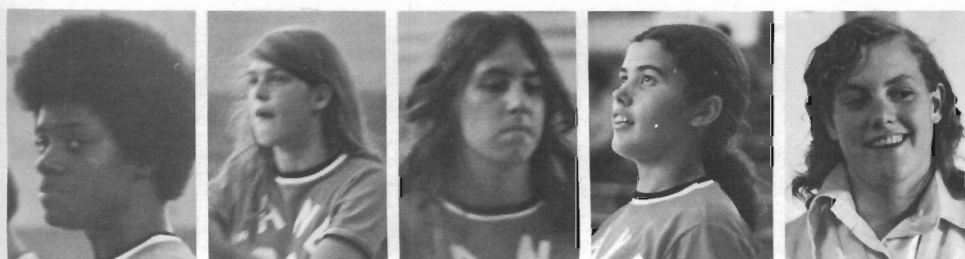

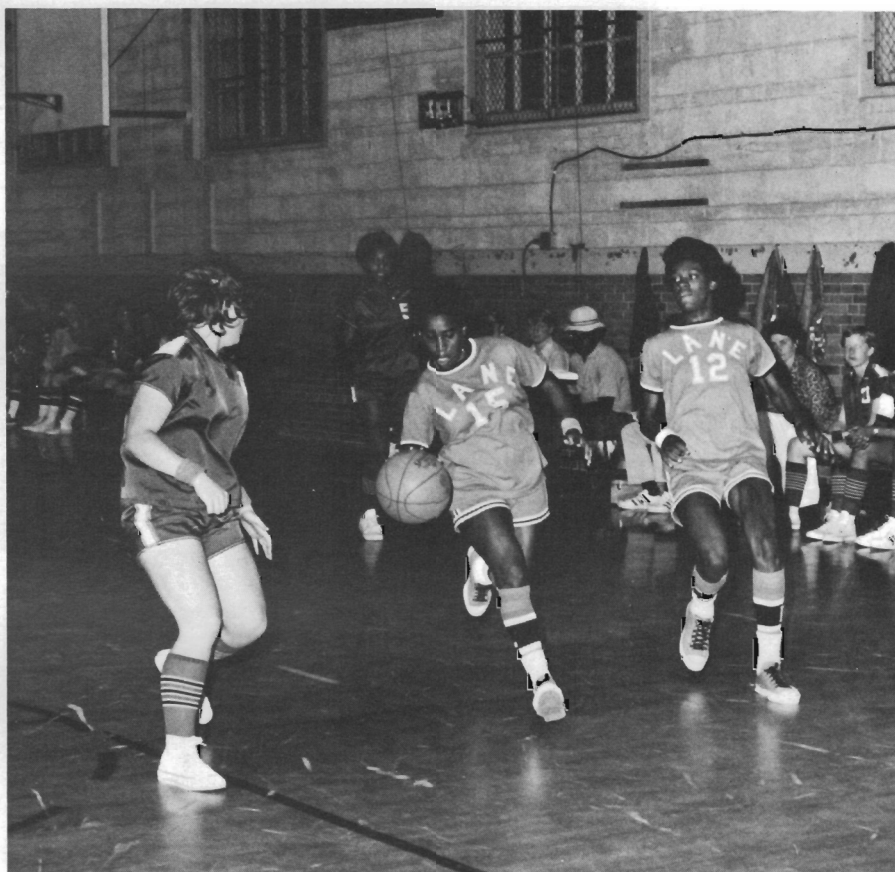

No one showed any interest in coming out. The school showed hardly any support for our games.

Each day begins with faces

Each and every day began with faces. From the time you walked into school, until you left, you saw faces. These faces interwove to give Lane High School a living, breathing soul. Some smiled impishly, full of youthful happiness. Others were serious, interested in solving the problems of their world. A funny expression here and a strange pair of ears there, all made brick and glass come alive...

Now is the time!

The week of February 12-16 was Black Culture Week and it was termed a great success by most of the students; both black and white. The speakers and films were very relevant to black students and most left these sessions with feelings of pride and a greater knowledge and understanding of their ancestors' past. Most white students felt that the lectures were also very informative and added to their limited knowledge of black people and their past. A student-created play, "Sister Ta-keisha", displayed the creativity and hard work of the students and the sponsors involved. The play traced the role of the black woman from Africa up to modern day. It was characterized by lively and colorful music, dancing, singing, and poetry reading.

Classrooms need changes

A sleek, black snake hangs motionless from the ceiling and rickety windows rattling loosely stand fearful against the wind. Four filthy, pale walls imprison students in a classroom along with the extension cord snake and icy drafts that sneak past the windows. No description of a typical Lane classroom would be complete without mentioning the battered and broken desks that are crammed into each room. Scarred and dirty, the uncomfortable desks have faithfully served Lane students for several decades.

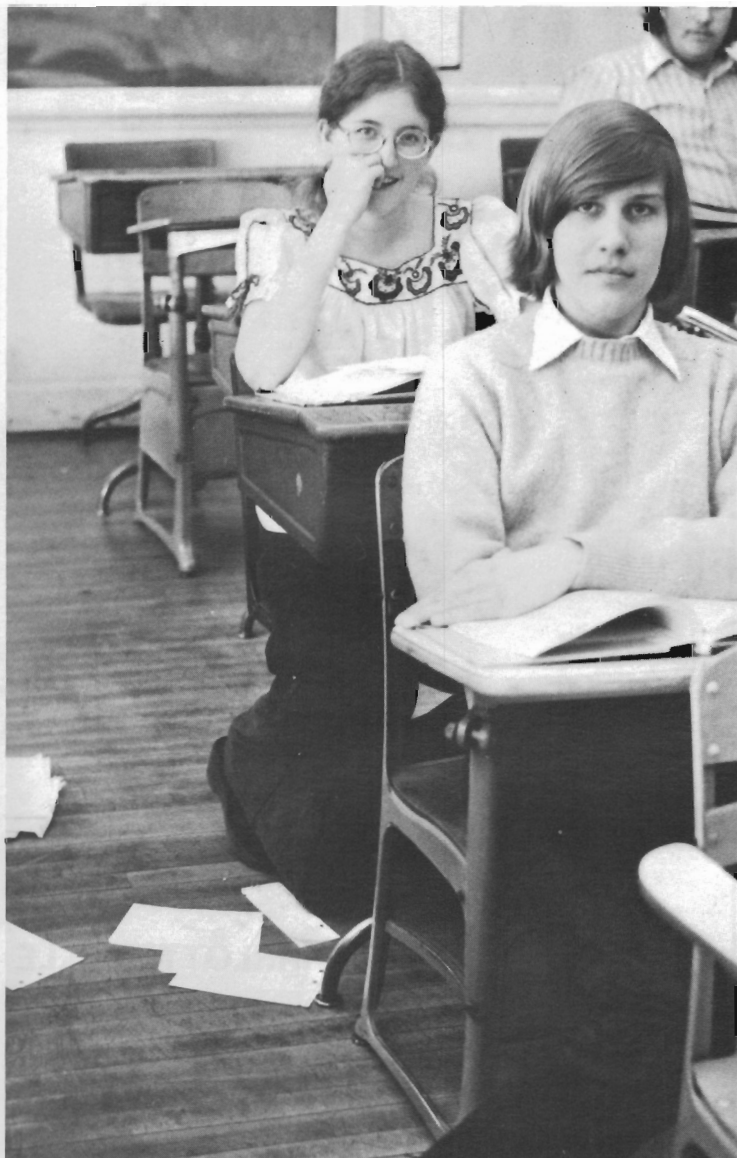

We all know how uninspiring the rooms at Lane are, but some teachers have taken the initiative to brighten the classroom atmosphere with colorful bulletin boards, inspiring posters and neat, orderly desks. Breaking tradition, many teachers no longer arrange the desks in straight, linear rows. Rooms now have desks in semi-circles and other novel arrangements. The variety of seating styles gives students added stimulation as they become more aware of their surroundings. The arrangements also create closer relationships between students and teachers because teachers sit among their students instead of behind their desks at the front of the room. These methods employed by teachers help to arouse creative and provocative thinking of the students inside the classroom.

Christmas finally comes to Lane

Christmas trees in the lobby, chains hanging from the ceiling, and carolers in the halls were all part of Christmas at Lane. The spirit of the season was evident all over the school, from turkey lunches to kids and teachers dressed in bright reds and greens. The sophomore class ran a post office and Christmas cards were mailed all over the school with same-day delivery service! And of course the students were all counting the days until vacation. Almost everyone had something exciting planned from skiing trips to 10 days of sleeping. Christmas was here when that final bell rang. Students and teachers alike were ready for their break and the rest and relaxation it provided.

Think snow

It was what everyone had been waiting for. SNOW! The delicate white flakes were quickly dancing their way to the earth. At the first sight of the dry snow, some students could not resist the urge to leave school while their classmates unwillingly stayed behind to finish the school day. It proved fun for those who did stay. Not many classes were active. Most were hypnotized by the swirling snow.

Unfortunately, city schools remained open the following day. Some who had been sledding the night before came in with long faces. Others who had had high hopes of closed schools, stayed up most of the night, came in groggy-eyed from lack of sleep. Maybe next time...

Ecology—study, experience, save

Snakes, snails, alligator tails, and things that go bump in the night . . . the Man and His Environment class was once again in the Florida Everglades. Following a semester of basic ecology study, they came looking for a living ecology textbook and a break in the everyday routine. They found both and much, much more.

The class found a vast wilderness where the sawgrass stretched smoothly to the horizon, broken only by an occasional hammock. They went on a "swamp tromp" through the sawgrass and discovered what a nightmarish tangle the glades really are. And they gained an even greater respect for this River Of Grass.

There is no other wilderness like the Everglades on this planet. That is why what is left of it must be saved. The students of Man and His Environment, having seen the glades in their natural state and what man has done to that natural state, are better prepared to help save this last wilderness.

Aids look toward the future

Future secretaries or librarians may be present in Lane's office, library or guidance. Many students spend their free periods in these places assisting the secretaries or the librarians. Some of these students already have part time jobs in the public library or as secretaries.

As office, library or guidance assistants, these students aid both members of the faculty and other students. They do everything from running errands to checking out kids and books. Very often the job is rushed and bewildering. While occasionally a time for studying, talking, or just sitting exists.

The new idea of independent study really caught on this year. Last year only four students took advantage of it; now over twenty people do. Everyday the library is filled from first period through sixth with students pursuing subjects that interest them. Mrs. Stearns and Miss Bradway are again serving as advisors.

Students' sudden interest has increased for several reasons. There are some students who find sitting in classrooms extremely boring and a waste of time. Others like to work at their own speed using a variety of resources.

Independent study takes a lot of hard work and self-discipline but many students seem to really enjoy it.

Teamwork conquers a tough season

Being on Lane's basketball team has been an experience for me. It has given me a chance to be something for the first time. I've met a lot of people while playing. It also gave us a chance to get to know each other better; we've gotten along better as a team than as individuals. At the first of the year we didn't have it all together, but as soon as we did I don't think there was any team that could beat us. We had fun on trips and goofing off.

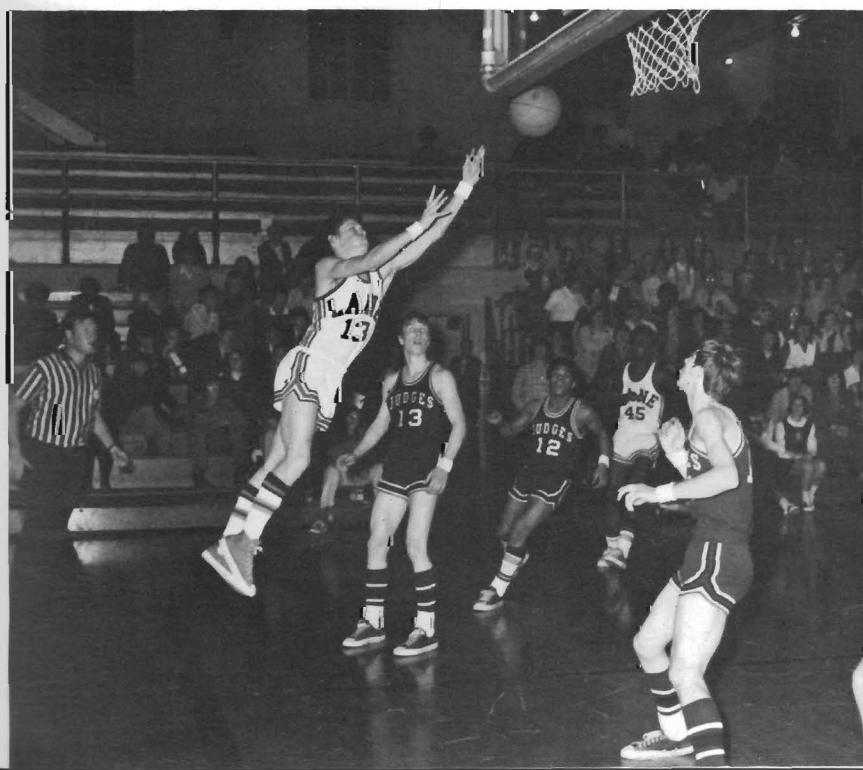

Mr. Jones is the only coach I know that can put a team together and make it a winning team. And Mr. Weaver and Mr. Wright were always there when you had a problem and needed assistance, and your problem was always solved once you had their advice. It was like searching for something but you couldn't reach it, but with their help you could. The manager did a good job taping people up like mummies and drowning them in the whirlpool or giving a uniform twice your size. All I can say is, it's been great and I hope that other players had as much fun as I did.

J.V. basketball proves successful in 1972-73 season

The team has had a lot of desire and a "never die" attitude. You can't say enough about the coaches. Coach Weaver was a real asset to the coaching staff and to the team. I'd like to thank the coaches for letting me be a part of the 1972-1973 basketball team.

Activities offer escape

Students hang out of windows to catch a fleeting moment of mental solitude. The warm breeze, blossoming flowers and swooping birds become momentary hideaways for busy students. Spring arrives and Lane students want to forget their daily workloads and get lost in activities of spring.

Escape from classroom drudgery comes in many forms. A new rash of spring sports offers freedom for athletic-minded students. Baseball, softball, track, tennis, and golf become daily activities that release pent-up energy and enthusiasm. As the temperature rises, so does the percentage of skipping students. Everyone longs to be outdoors as spring fever haunts their minds. Annie Barnett

I worked with lights, sound, publicity, and Donna . . . This was the first time that I have worked with a production and I thoroughly enjoyed it.

Steve Lineberger

The practices were long, but working with Mr. Craddock made the long hours seem pleasurable. The entire cast was highly interested in drama. The first night we were so hyper—we also had so much make-up on that when we licked our lips, our teeth turned red.

Lacrosse has first successful year at Lane

Lacrosse is the "baddest" sport to be played at Lane High School. We have more potential than other teams to go out and play hard, fight, and win against the Big Boys. So far this year we've given every team our best because no team comes easy on our unpredictable schedule.

Stan Horowski

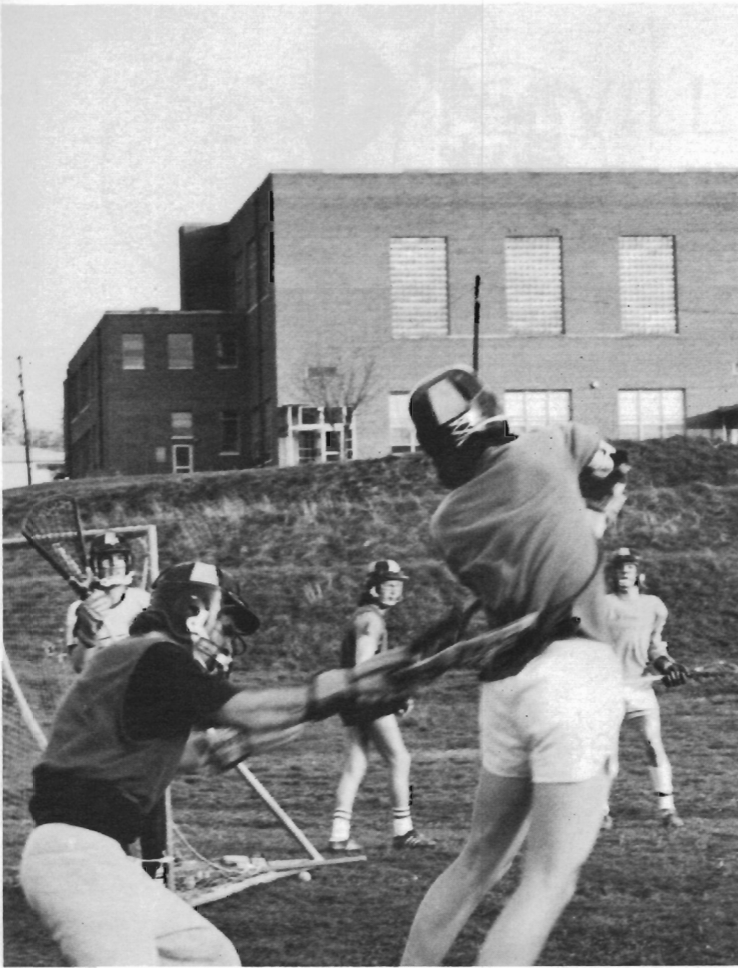

In our losses to Blue Ridge, Woodberry Forest, and Belfield, we were plagued by inexperience and numerous penalties. As the season progresses, the team should gain momentum and finish strong.

Tim Johns

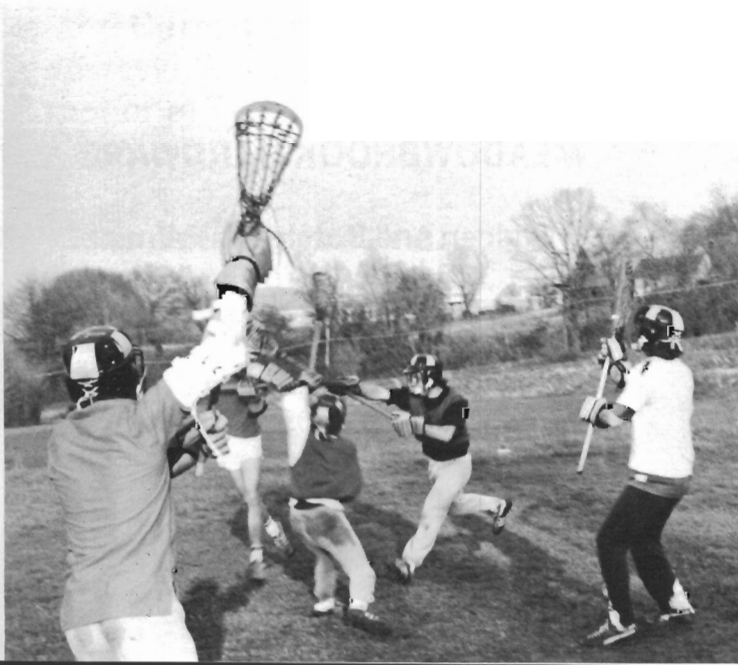

Coaches Dick Proutt and Leif Gulbrandson must be recognized for helping us every day, and without receiving any financial aid. Without Dick's cooperation and dedication we wouldn't be playing lacrosse at Lane. Except for several favors by Mr. Bingler, Lane has only provided us with a name and ample discouragement. But we are fairing well, so we are proud to be an independent organization at Lane.

Foreigners welcome variety

The students of Lane High School welcomed five foreign students into their ranks this year. After seeing many strange faces and unfamiliar sites, friendships were formed and new areas of interest were found. They were pleased by the wide variety of subjects offered and the freedom of choice for their classes.

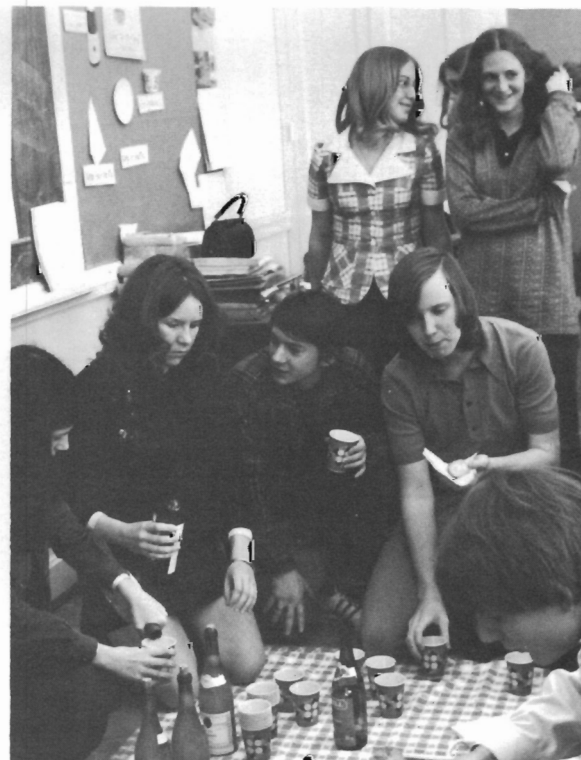

During the year many of these students have become involved in school activities. The activities include sporting events, clubs and the school play. The friendliness of the student body made a great impression upon the foreign students, and they would like to say thank-you for the hospitality of Lane High School.

Lazy days arrive

The spring of '73 was a soggy one. It rained an unprecedented twelve weekends in a row, and a snow in April topped the season.

Despite the unpredictable weather students still managed to get spring fever. It became increasingly harder to stay in school during the few sunny days of early spring and almost impossible as summer approached.

As the days became longer, the students found more and more reasons to enjoy the sunshine before school, during lunch, and between classes. Spring was late this year, but it did finally come and with it came the high spirits, spring fever, and cutting of classes which is associated with the season.

Lane track—apt to be number one

Bill Copeland looks strongest to break 50 seconds now. A lot of things can happen and we have to work hard if we want to return as District Champions.

Bunny Carr

This year's track team is a young one, especially in the distance events. Steve Busch and Steve Jamme are the only returning distance men and will have to carry most of the load. Our field events team is especially strong. Garfield, Lane and Albemarle will be in the race for District Champions.

Willie Griffin

There's only one thing I've got to say about the Lane Track Team. It's good and we've got the material to be number 1.

Lane's strength is in field events

This year's track team to me is much more of a team because to win it takes a much greater effort because of the size of the other teams we play. Therefore the relationship between the players is a much closer one and this adds to the enjoyment of winning.

Also there are more blacks out for track than last year and even more coming from the two junior highs.

Ronnie Green

Track is a sport which I can really compete in. Not only against another team but my teammates as well. Track has taught me to work independently and together. Above all things, it has taught me to win.

Jasper Banks

Track is just something to do in the afternoon after school. Sometimes it is all right when practice is easy. It's just a thing of the past.

256 printed pages with a hard cover
They call it an annual though hardly an appropriate description.
Each page reflects
upon an event of a past year
 but each reader responds with memories of many years not just because of the long-ago occurrences but because of the many farewells and signatures included among the pages.

This particular yearbook is entitled the Chain;
 a very appropriate description,
 at least, for me,

because the pages of this annual link me to memories and tie me to people whom
I'd like to remember
but also people
I'd prefer to forget
 not because I dislike them
but because of the melancholy they cause and I'd rather not experience

the sadness of melancholy.

Musical programs performed

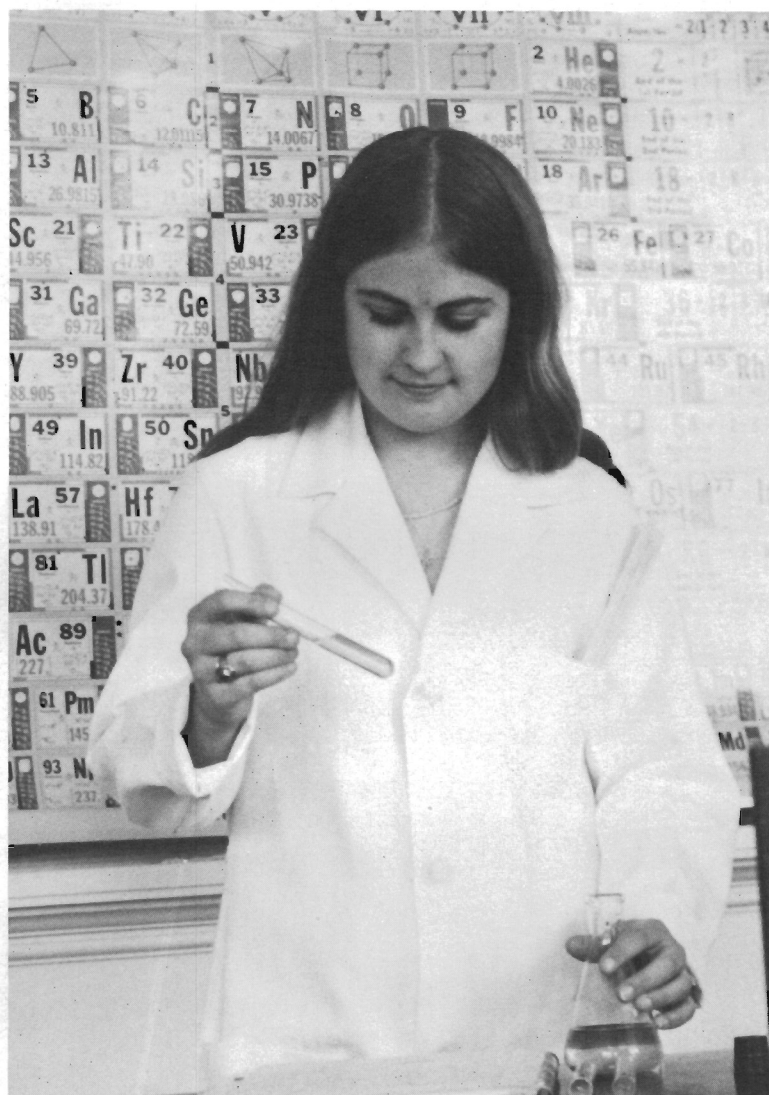

Lane High School students exhibited their musical abilities in the Band's Easter Concert, held on April 12, and the Chorus Concert, held on May 10. The chorus program featured chorals, madrigals, folk, and classical music and covered a period of five centuries. "Come Again Sweet Love", "I've Got Rhythm", and "The Doe", were some of the songs that were sung.

The Band's Spring Concert was a delight, featuring such songs as, "American Civil War Fantasy" and highlights from "Promises, Promises". During the concert, Mr. Huegel made a presentation of medals to senior band members who will graduate this year. The stage was decorated with Easter Eggs to put everyone in the holiday mood.

The top is commendable

Only a few students are able to reach the top. Hard work, discipline and effort are the highways that led them to honors. In the years to come, other students will rise to reap new glories, but the achievements of all will follow them for years to come.

Let us hold these winners up as examples, but realize that excellence is not restricted to a few fields. All spheres of endeavor, no matter how humble, have those who excel in them. The same hard work and discipline can make us all winners in the years to come, no matter what our task may be.

Apathy absorbs a good team

This year we have the best golf team, I think, Lane has ever had. We have one of the stronger teams in the District and I think we should do well. There has been talk going around school about not having a golf team next year. I think there should be a golf team because of the reason that there are more and more people getting interested in the sport. There are some good golfers coming up from the Junior High. I think it will work out if we just give it some time and hard work.

Flip Dudley

Out of approximately 1300 students I would like to have seen more than four students participate in golf. It's a sport that has close to no recognition or support from the students here at Lane High. Golf is a sport much like tennis in that it requires an innate talent and ability to actually succeed. We need to give this sport more support along with many others that are not recognized.

School board prepares for opening of new school

Choose a suitable site, draw blueprints, and estimate budgets. Then work to get the plans approved and passed. Construction soon begins with ground breaking and earthmoving. Construction crews create a buzz of confusion as power lines are replaced, budgets are constructed and steel beams are raised toward the sky. At last the new Charlottesville high school is underway.

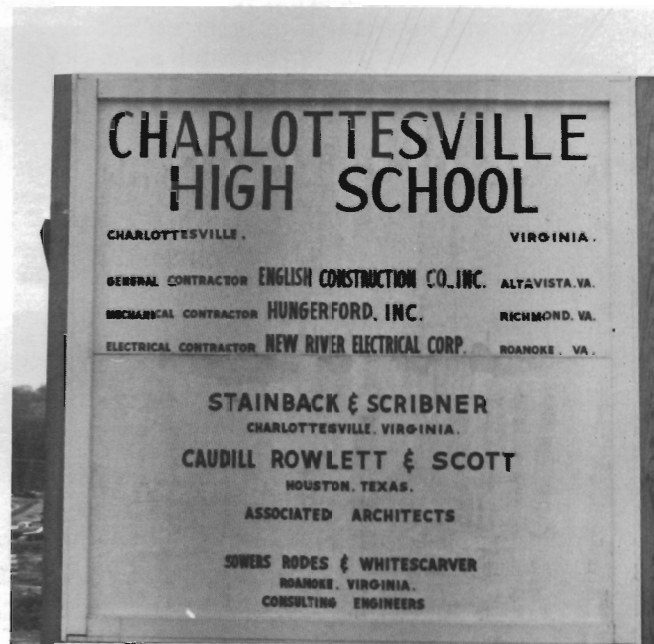

Architects and builders are not the only creators of the new high school. The school board, in addition with the student school board, are the real building blocks of the high school. The board makes the decisions as to what the new school contains, how much money to spend, and where the building is located. These people put forth effort and energy to supply Charlottesville with a more modern building. Yet, the immense building is not a complete facility until the administration, faculty and the student body become a part of the new school.

Girl's sports at Lane accepted

Lane's softball team this year is quite effective both offensively and defensively, partially because we are an experienced team compared with our opponents. Last year the softball team earned enough money for uniforms for this year's team. As well as being effective, we look effective.

Our team has determination to lead us through our season undefeated. We only have six games due to Albemarle's refusal to play us. This refusal altered our enthusiasm momentarily but our coach got our spirits back.

Although softball isn't a sport that thrives on spectators' support, it helps to have people outside of your teammates cheering you.

Penny Norford

The girls on the team are very friendly and we get along fine. We joke about each others' race because we don't feel ashamed of what we are. We worked hard to get our uniforms and now we work hard at practice getting ready for the game. We play not because we have to, but only because we want to. We play as a team all the way or we don't play at all.

Lunch time arrives

Many students are fortunate enough to eat an early lunch. Others must wait longer, and temporarily satisfy their food craving by eating gum and candy between classes.

While many students eat indoors in the crowded cafeteria, sitting and talking around sticky lunch tables, there are other students who prefer to eat outdoors, weather permitting. Students eating outdoors also enjoy the smoking opportunity, along with the opportunity to gossip with friends. Lunch is fun and necessary.

Rain delays athletics at Lane

This year's team has more potential than any of the past three years I've played with. We have more depth, a better pitching staff, and something Lane hasn't had for a while, a consistent hitting team. As for Coach Bingler and Mr. Wood, I would put them up against any two coaches in the state. With the help of Mr. Payne, our catching coach, I feel everyone will receive more individual attention.

John Melton

The support for the baseball team is far short of that for any other sport at Lane. Together we have the best won-lost percentage of any sport at Lane. We have the best coach at Lane and we work the hardest of any team at Lane.

Calvin Cason

We have the ability to score runs and play a tough defense. We have the will to win and we can come back after a loss.

Youth and experience make team

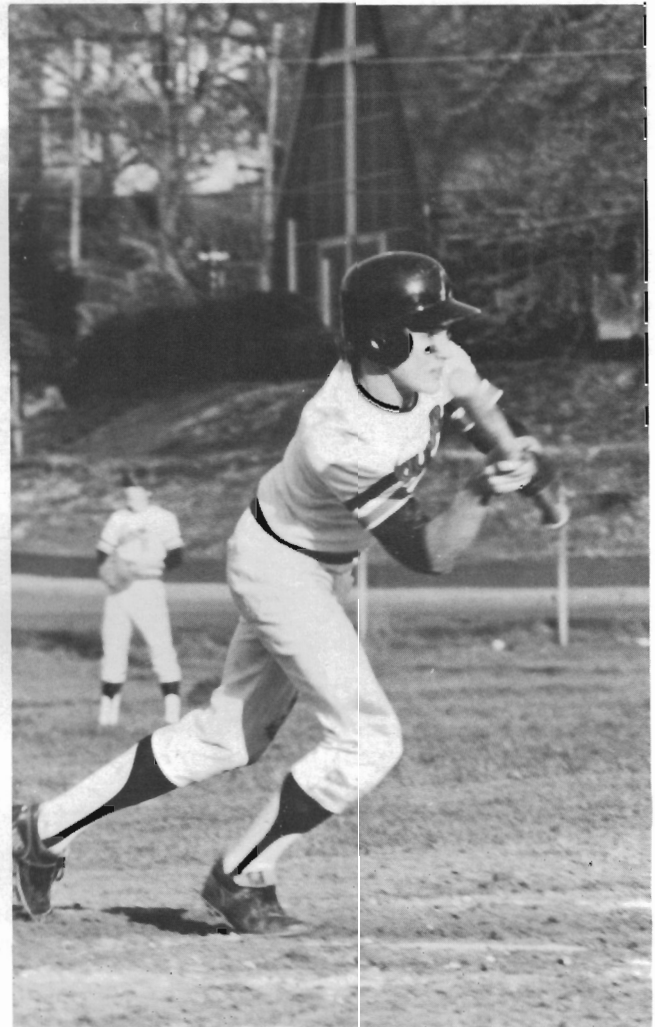

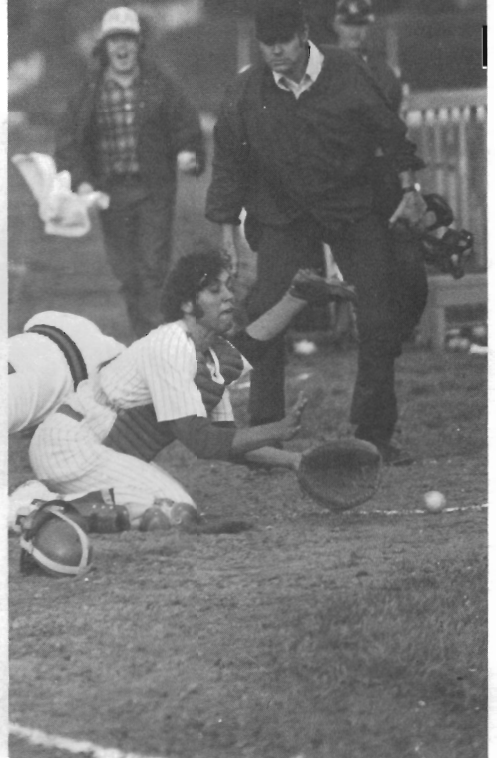

I feel that we have a lot of good young talent this year which will help the team in the future. I think we have a good chance of winning the district again this year. This year we have the help of a new coach in Mr. Payne along with two of the finest coaches Bingler and Wood.

I'm glad to see that this year there has been a little more interest in baseball and I think one of the reasons is the Bat Girls.

Picasso still lives at Lane

Many students slaved to meet the deadline for the art show. Students crammed hours of talent into a short time to prepare for the display. Brilliantly-colored oils of people and landscapes were on display as well as pastels and watercolors. Leatherworks of keychains, belts, and other novelties were included. Students expertly created patterns of stitchery against burlap backgrounds to demonstrate their abilities. Ceramic vases, pots, and cups rounded out the various projects.

The art show was an excellent chance for students to display their talents, their creativity, and their skill. As students worked with different artistic forms, they developed interest in new medias and broadened their imagination.

Senior activities arrive

As the end of the school year grew closer, the tension began to build in seniors. They took their exams early and spent the next week in culminating activities. At Baccalaureate practice, everyone received their caps and gowns and learned how to march into the auditorium. Reverend Henry Mitchell delivered the address to seniors at Baccalaureate on Sunday, June 3.

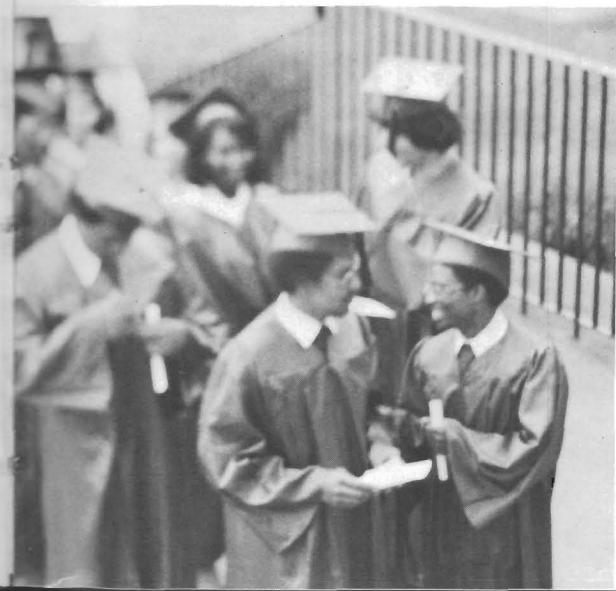

Despite rainy weather the seniors' class picnic was held Wednesday at Lake Albemarle. Seniors enjoyed swimming and boating when the rain stopped. Mingling with friends, perhaps for the last time, everyone enjoyed themselves. Food catered by Caravan satisfied the ravenous appetites. Dancing to the jukebox later in the evening helped to work off the dinner.

With prom coming on Thursday night, the excitement was building for Friday night and the final senior activity—Graduation.

"Summer Breeze makes me feel fine"

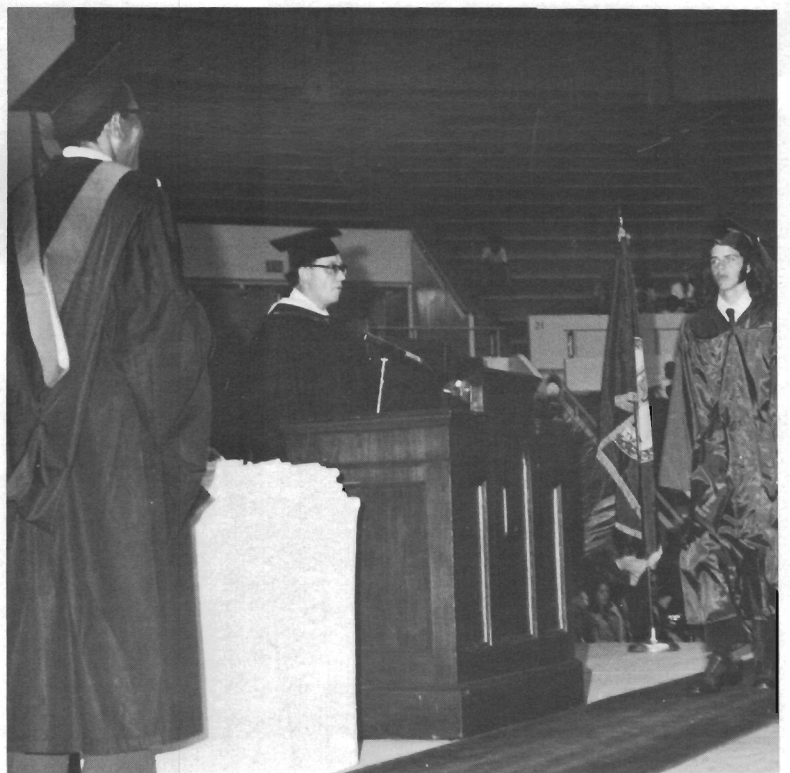

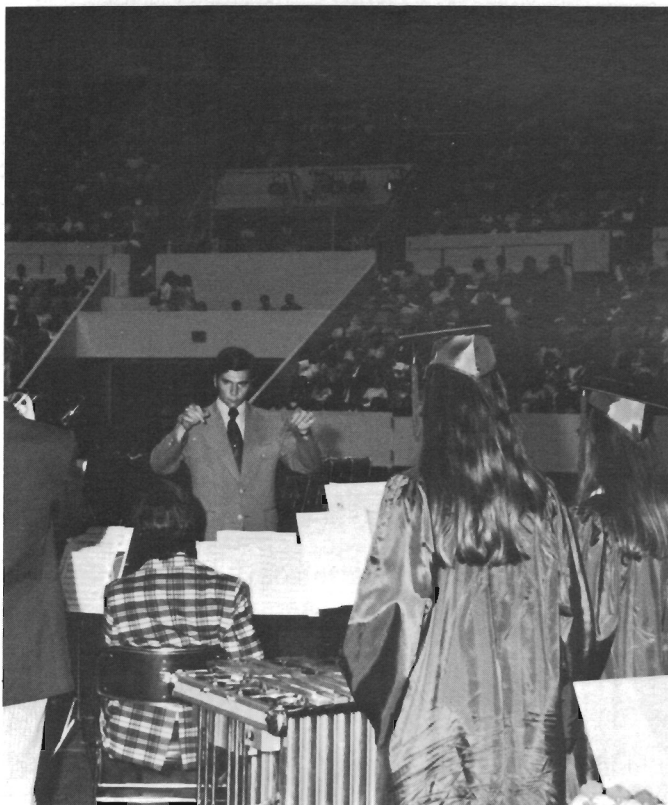

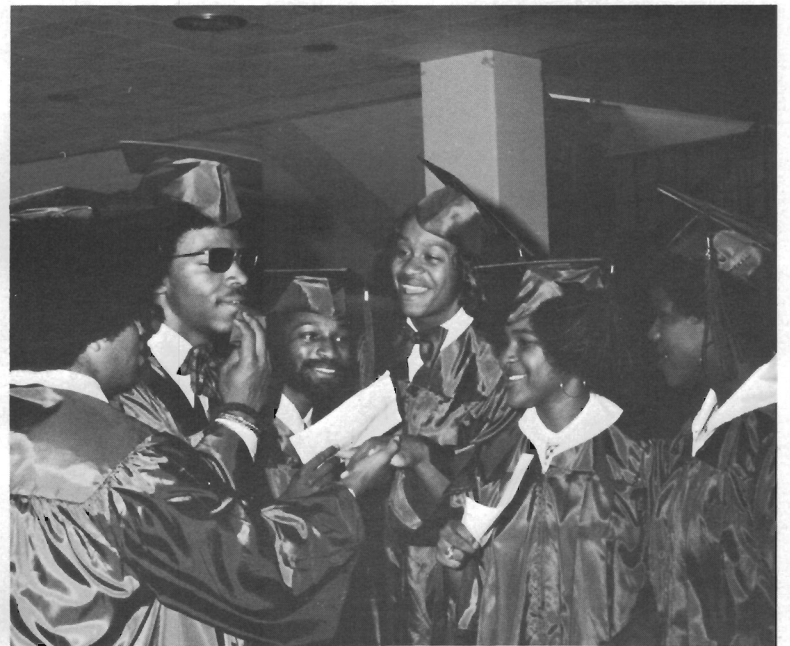

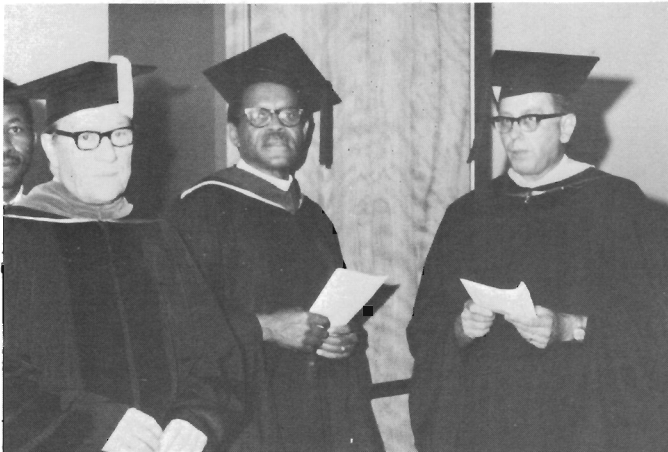

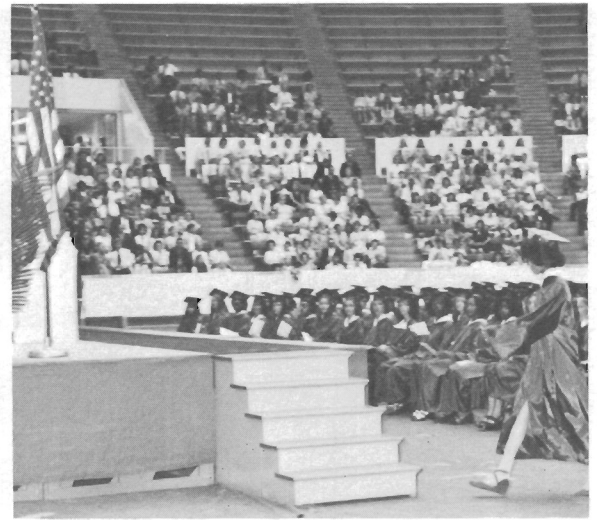

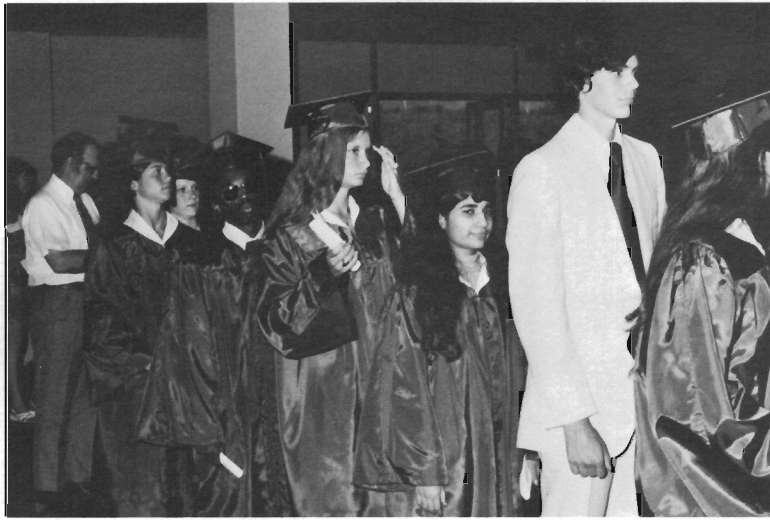

Several juniors transformed the Lane gym into an image of paradise, but where was the "Summer Breeze"? Perhaps it was whispering through the minds of those who were planning to go to the beach or lie at the edge of a pool or enjoy a long summer's rest away from the trials of school life or even thoughts of an air conditioned office. At any rate, the heat may have drenched everyone's clothes, but it didn't dampen the excitement which naturally accompanies a prom. A major reason for the enthusiasm was "Chess" who played soul and rock and roll expertly throughout the night.

The school's decision not to have a queen's court was met with little adversity. Therefore, socializing and dancing remained uninterrupted throughout the evening of "Summer Breeze".

Speeches relate senior thoughts

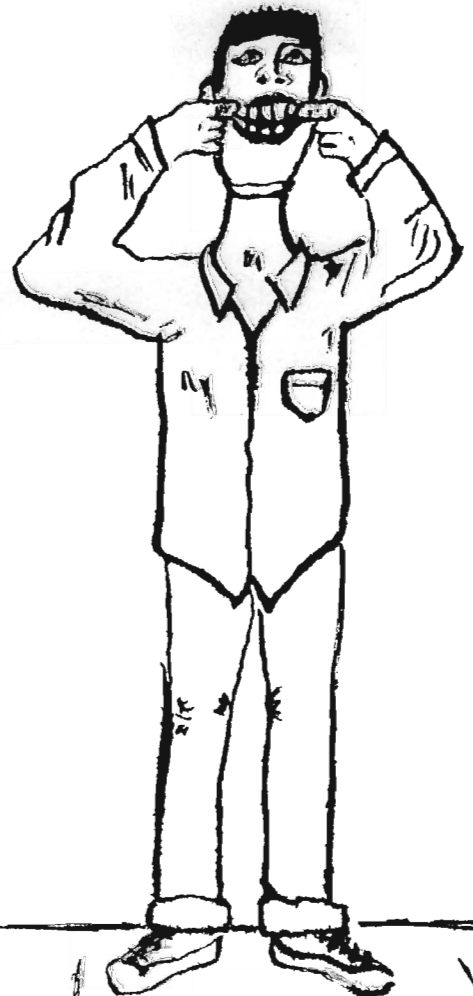

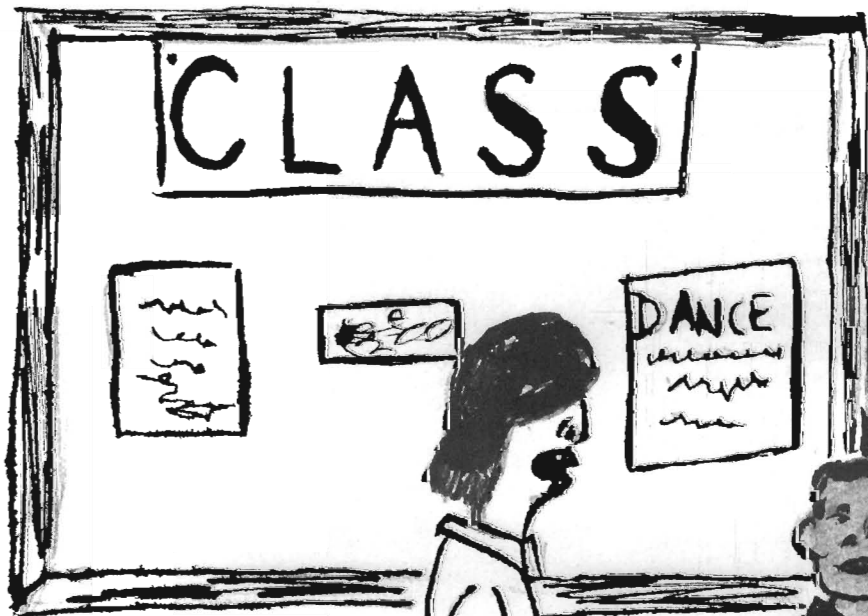

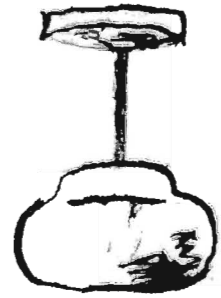

Lane's 1973 graduates entered University Hall to the traditional tune of "Pomp and Circumstance". The honored speakers were Martha Bestebreurtje, salutatorian, who welcomed the audience to the ceremony by emphasizing the value of tradition, and Miriam Trogdon, valedictorian. The valedictorial speech proved to be controversial as parents and faculty frowned while students applauded Miriam's comments about Lane.

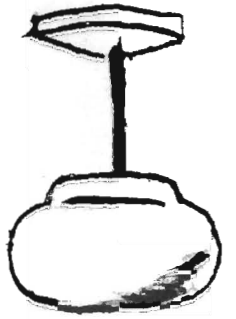

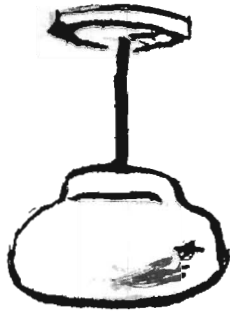

Awards, scholarships, and diplomas were distributed as the Reverend Henry Mitchell said "Carry on the good work" to each of the 387 graduates. They were merely Lane seniors mounting the steps to receive their diplomas, but they descended as qualified graduates. Following the distribution of diplomas, the band played "Lane Onward" for the departing students. At the close of the song, some seniors responded by flinging their caps into the air. The formal recessional at University Hall ended the high school years for some and made room for the Senior Class of 74.

Give a cheer!

Football games:
 Stands packed
 Kids, students, parents
 Mouths open—
 Yelling, cheering, eating.
 A fumble—
 Worried looks, tension
 A touchdown—
 Seven more points
 A winning score.

That saving break

Eating, gobbling
Swallowing,
Sticky fingers and Milky mouths.
Talking, gossiping
Shouting and laughing—
Reading the menu
Smiling, frowning and Questions.
Mass confusion
Books, people, food.
Afterwards,
Seniors on the second floor
Lounging, studying, enjoying
Their one privilege.
Bell rings,
Bodies move and
Lunch is over.

"Undefeated class of '73"

Afternoon hours
Devoted to Exercises, practice and
Laps around the field.
Muddy blue jeans,
Bruised elbows,
Scarred knees,
Indian war whoops
Bows and arrows,
Captured Cowboys,
Picking a jock and
Wearing his number.
The big night—
Seven to zero.
Victory for the Indians.

Working is . . .

Punching
In, out
Late, early—
Stock boys, errand boys
Bag boys, bus boys
Clerks, receptionists
Waitresses, secretaries
Running errands.
Waiting on customers and

Thank goodness for weekends

A sudden burst of energy,
After a long week of work,
A show of spirit,
Ballgames,
Will Lane win?
After the game, to Barnaby's,
Time to visit friends,
An occasional dance,
Riding around and making rounds,
Eating too much,
Then too little,
Sunday night, doing homework,
Not enough time.
Monday morning comes too soon.

The ultimate reality arrives

We, the Seniors of '73,
Accept the diploma,
A significant end to the years
Of preparation,
Aware that each of us
Must carve his individual place
In life.
We cannot be stereotyped.
We are creative and imaginative.
Each has his own set of ideas.
Our graduation is not a dream
But a reality.
And we face the future with
Many memories of Lane.
Thank you.

Everyone has a place

Juniors
Who are we?
In the middle,
Not the oldest,
Certainly not the youngest.
Just here.
Not too good,
Not too bad,
Confusing.
Wait 'til next year.

Deciding for others

Decisions;
Budgets to be made,
Meetings planned—
Carried out,
Discussions,
Paper work,
Mad parents,
Corporal punishment;
Authority to make Decisions for a Group,
A system.

TOP: Central Administration, Dr. Crow, Mr. Nickels, Mr. Varner, Mr. Reeves, Dr. Rushton, Mr. Eberhart, Mrs. Jackson, Mr. Hopkins, and Mr. Hart discuss business. ABOVE: In an effort to finish his work, Mr. Barnett works diligently. MIDDLE: After seven years of service, Dr. Rushton retires from his position on the schoolboard. RIGHT: Glad to get away from the paper work, Mr. Huegel welcomes guests.

Taking it easy

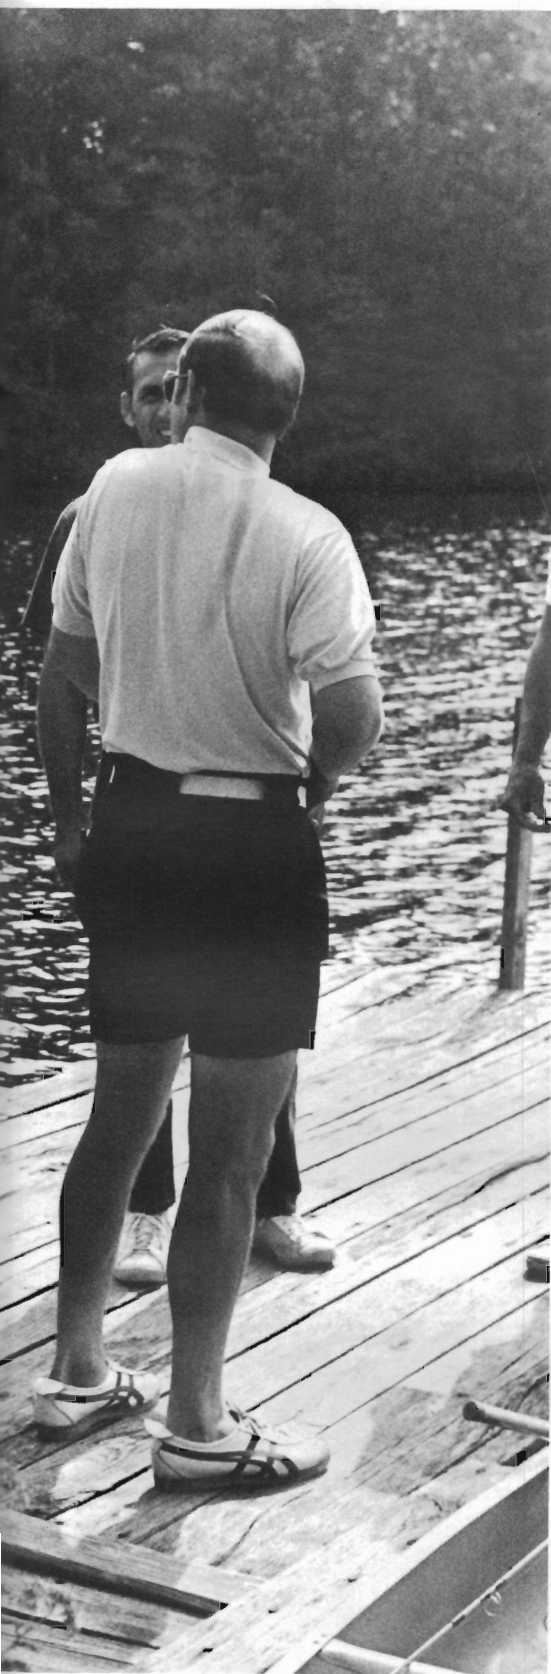

Sunny,
Warm day;
Picnic baskets;
Baseball game,
Hiking, fishing,
Talking with people,
Sharing experiences,
Sitting on the ground,
Friends,
A change of pace.

LEFT: Trying to beat Mr. Crafaik to the fish,
Mr. Smith hastens toward the lake. BELOW:
Enjoying the calm, Mrs. Pleasants relaxes.

BELOW: The faculty picnic gives Mrs. Jensen a chance to collect specimens for her Earth Science class. BOTTOM LEFT: Mrs. Rash, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Stripling and Mrs. Chisholm play a game of bridge while Miss Zilmer, Miss Bradway, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Mitchell await their turn. RIGHT: Standing firm on his techniques, Mr. Wright, the new assistant to the principal, tells Mr. Theodore and Mr. Jones how to fish.

Enjoying the sun

Picnics
Hungry people, ants and fish.
Buzzing conversation, bees
Laughter, gossip
Sunshine, sandals
Sitting, friends
No mask
No leftovers
Fun.

BELOW: Heading for the food, Mr. Crafaik, Mr. Cunningham and his wife appear impatient to eat. BOTTOM: In great form, Mr. Bingler pitches a horseshoe as Mr. Quinn looks on.

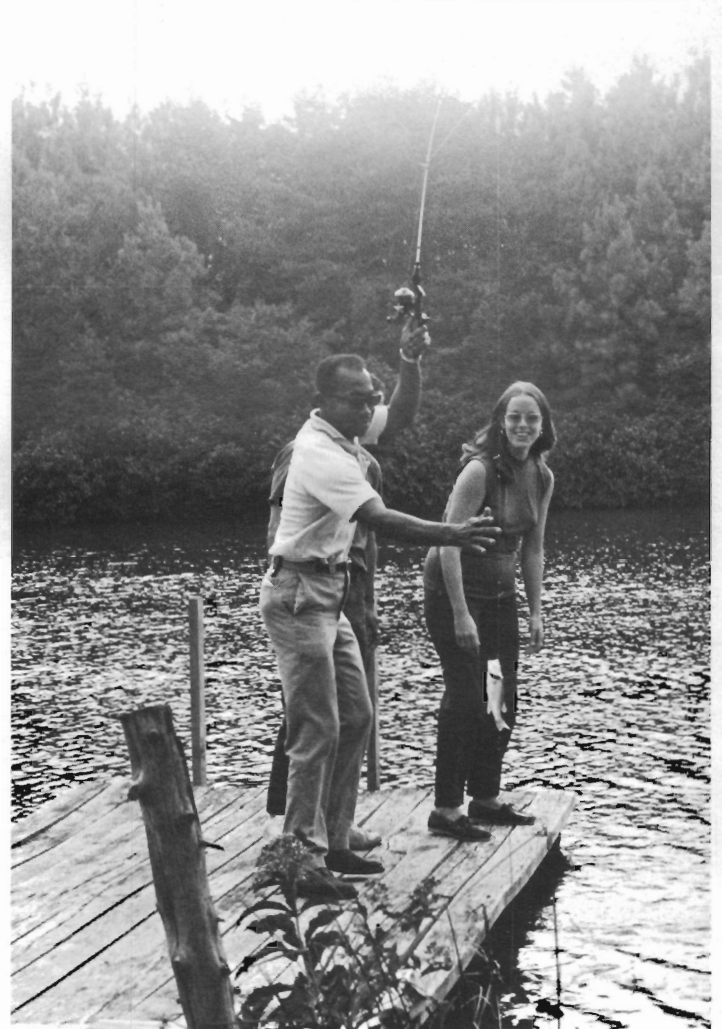

It was a good day

6:30 A.M.,
Lunch;
Chicken
Peanut butter and jelly,
Soda pop;
On the floor.
Washington Monument,
Everglades,
Bullfights, Parthenon,
The Eiffel Tower,
A day,
A Week, two weeks,
Field trips.

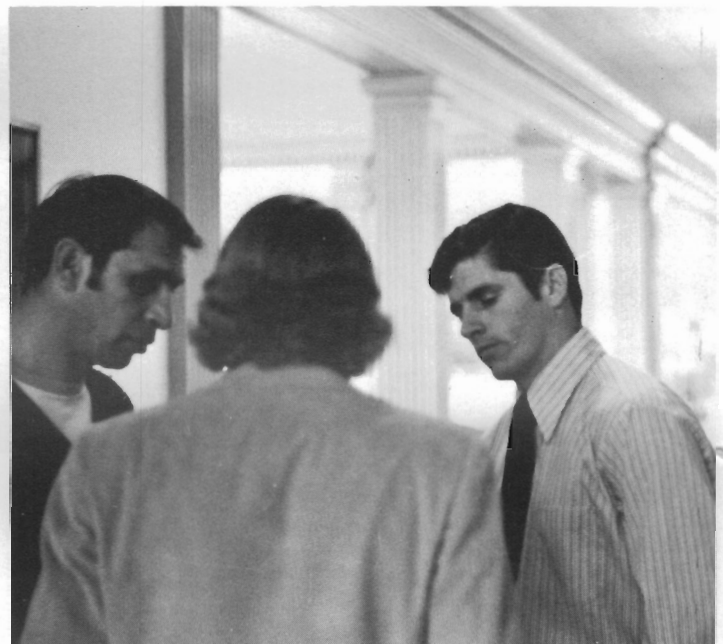

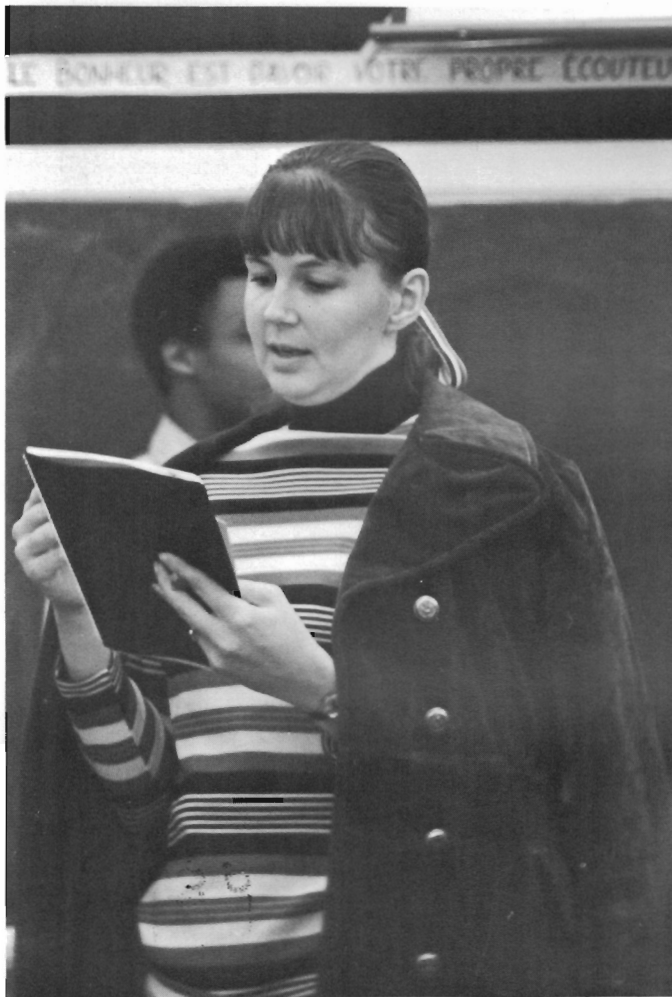

TOP: Engaging in girl talk are Mrs. Chisholm, Miss Bradway, Mrs. Shaughnessy and Mrs. Rash. RIGHT: While Mrs. Jones watches, Mr. Murray reels in a big one.

TOP LEFT: Reflecting on the morning practice, Miss Dickerman is inspired by the music. ABOVE: On a chilly day, Mrs. Stripling checks attendance. TOP RIGHT: Proud of her new shoes, Mrs. Mohny displays them to Sterling Roberts. MIDDLE: Discussing a serious subject, Mr. Theodose, Mr. Wood, and Mr. Smith search for a solution. RIGHT: At the faculty tea, Miss Spradlin and Mrs. Pittman discuss current events.

Learning is communicating ideas

A school building,
Walls, desks,
Floors,
Blackboards, chalk,
Erasers,
Rooms.
Most important;
People
Working, helping, trying,
Listening;
Teachers.

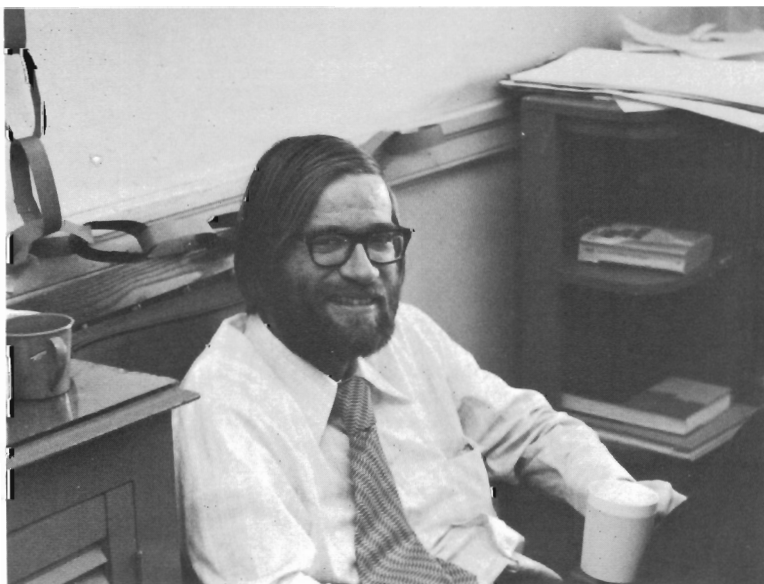

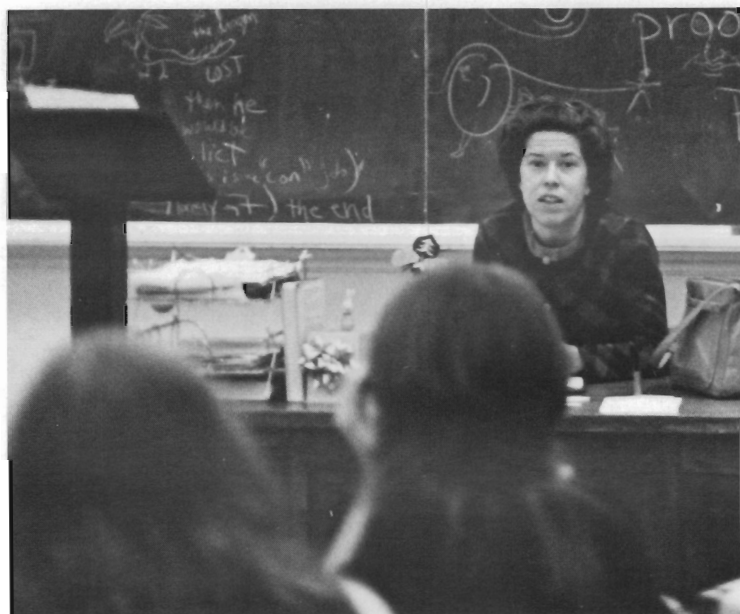

TOP LEFT: The outdoors serves as a classroom for Mr. Stacy and students. MIDDLE: Amused, Mrs. Towler laughs with class. LEFT: Astounded, Miss Zillmer pauses during Bachelor Living class. ABOVE: During class Mr. Craddock has a private conference with Tjinta Gaston.

Searching for answers

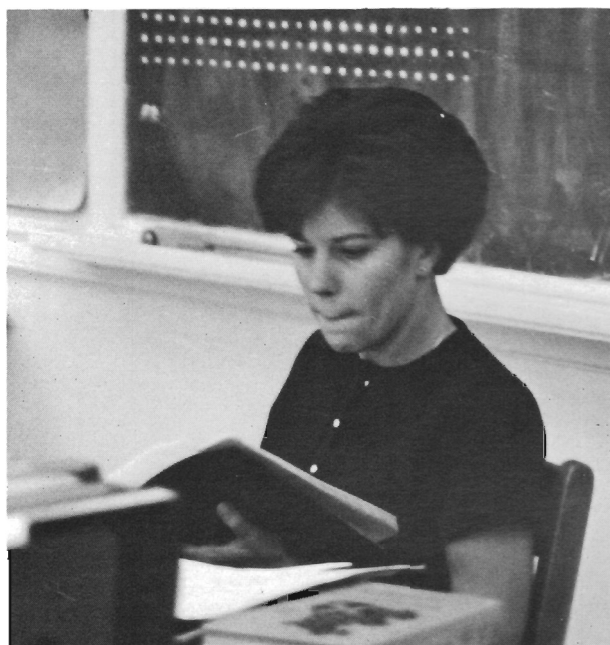

Beginning;
Not understanding
How it's done.
Learning;
Wondering if another
Way works.
Knowing
That understanding Is
Learning that many things
Can be done
Many different Ways.

Systems contain individuals

Teachers.
Different interests,
Hobbies,
Friends;
Ideas range:
Simple to extreme.
Share one trait
Makes them a part of a system,
Teaching.

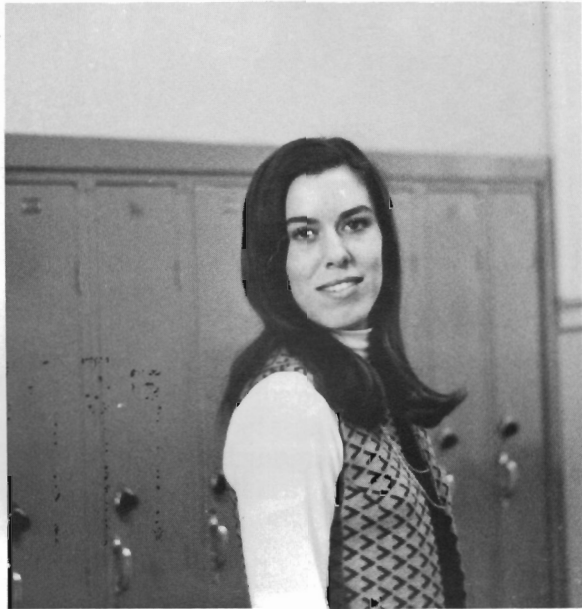

TOP LEFT: Surrounded by students is a cheerful Mr. Pool. ABOVE: With arms poised, Mr. Tornello directs the band. TOP RIGHT: Looking back, Miss McDaniell keeps a close eye on her students. ABOVE RIGHT: At a University game, Mr. Savage, Sue Anday, and Thomas Dickerson enjoy Band Day.

The methods change

Time brings changes,
Fads go in and out;
Little red schoolhouse,
One room, all grades,
Pot belly stoves,
Slates,
Polished apples,
Dunce hats;
Now,
Modern buildings,
Elementary, Junior,
Senior high,
Labs, field trips;
One thing remains,
Teachers.

TOP RIGHT: Keeping busy, Mrs. Pleasants, Mrs. Norcross, and Mrs. Brown check class exercises. RIGHT: Building a wall involves precise measurements as taught by Mr. Johnson. BELOW: On her last day at Lane, Mrs. Gardner attends a party in her honor. BELOW RIGHT: Dressed warmly, Miss Elliott prepares to face the cold.

A choice was made

Teaching and Getting tired,
Preparing lessons,
Administering business,
Involving a class
With the world,
Working, hoping,
Passing, failing.
Pursuing a chosen Profession.

Making progress

Teachers upward bound
Learning to better prepare lessons,
Staying ahead of eager students;
Dedication.
Today—
What's happening?
Teachers need to know,
Finding out:
Libraries,
Research,
Notes,
Masters Degrees;
Growing.

Choosing a profession

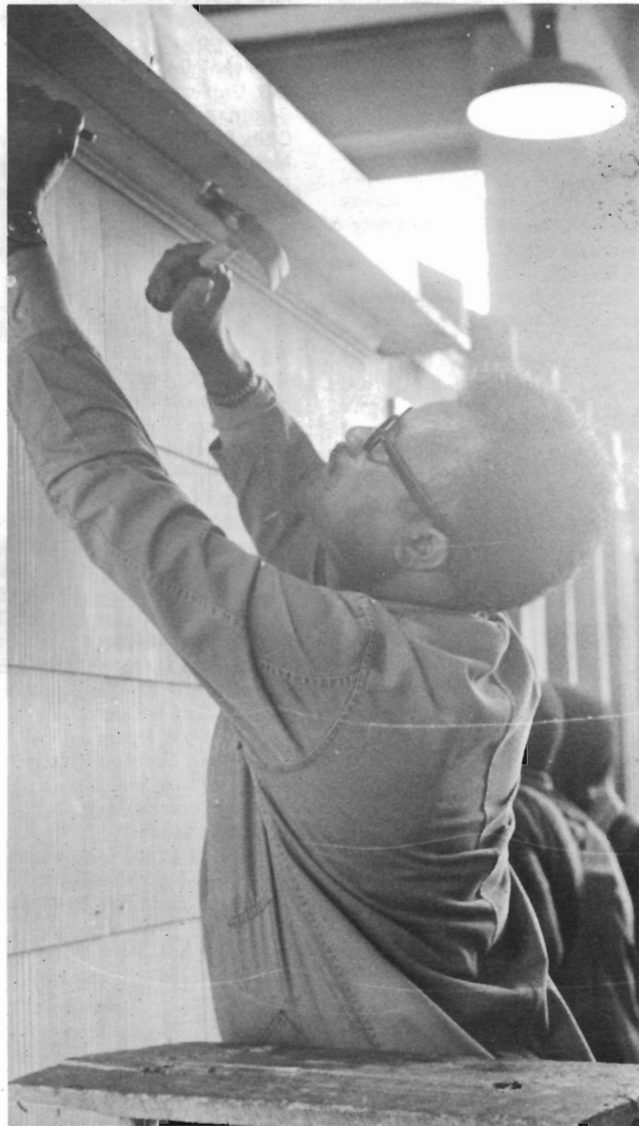

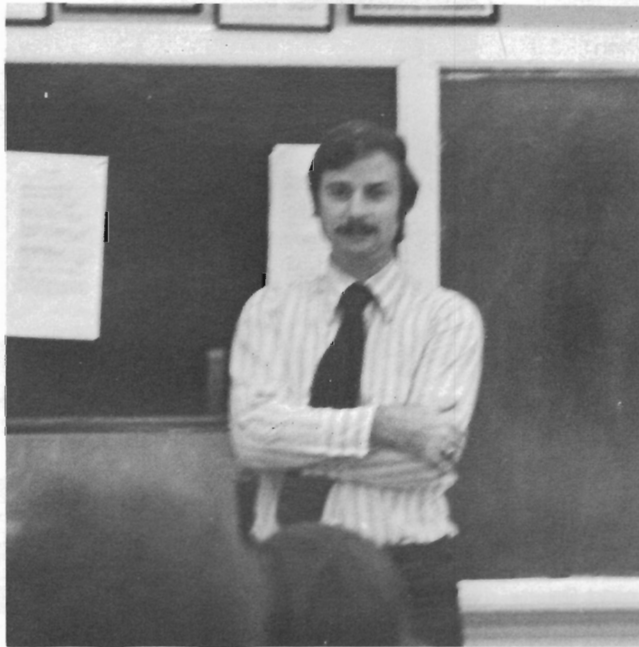

Childhood
Dreams; future
Astronaut,
President, garbage collector,
Nurse, teacher,
Engineer, mad scientist;
Today, reality;
A teacher.

ABOVE: Preparing a lesson for a class, Mrs. Roberts types in the work room. TOP RIGHT: A humorous thought comes to Mr. Mize as he sits in the faculty lounge. MIDDLE: In the AV room, Mr. Rockett checks equipment. RIGHT: The Florida Everglades offer Mrs. Haynes and an Ecology student the opportunity to explore.

LEFT: Always ready to help Lane's teachers are Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Wharans and Miss Carter. MIDDLE: Waiting for an answer, Mr. Terrell stands with folded arms. BOTTOM LEFT: During a business class, Mrs. Henson checks a student's work. BELOW: Carpentry class consists of many jobs, but Mr. Orr concentrates on nailing techniques.

The sunny days send many students to employment offices. They seek jobs for different reasons. First of all there is money, which is almost a synonym for independence. Much of the money is spent for the now, the necessities, but some goes toward the extras: cars, entertainment and travel. Rising costs of higher education require that some money be saved. Part-time vocational jobs transform into full-time careers for many students after graduation. Jobs, people, experiences—all lead toward greater independence and freedom for us all.

enjoys her work at McDonald's. BOTTOM LEFT: Jackets are high fashion and Sandra Blackwell helps a customer select one. RIGHT: Women work everywhere today and Penny Norford pumps gas at Hydraulic Road Exxon. THIS PAGE: TOP: Building his muscles for lacrosse, Mark Devins scrubs walls at State Farm. RIGHT: Two efficient girls, Pat Birkhead and Elizabeth Washington chart lab reports. BOTTOM: Secretaries leave a mess at State Farm for Flip Dudley to clean up.

We still have many students who don't want to carry the responsibility and lose their free time by working. Instead, they stay involved in community affairs. Usually these students are concerned about the world and want to help by starting at home. A committee at Lane works to have sex education classes taught to help the premarital problems today. Ecology students lecture to grammar school classes about their Everglades trip and ecology. Our concern for others unfolds as spring blossoms forth. The warm weather draws us outside to collect for the numerous children's camps in the area. Kids comb the city soliciting money for charities. Those who do not want to venture forth into the community stay secluded in school activities.

OPPOSITE PAGE: TOP: Gathered around the piano, Clair Holland, Beth Wood, Peggy Dovel, Muffin Plunkett, Jean Hamilton, and Nancy Newlon practice for "Show Me". CENTER: The Lane Band participates in a regional band day at UVA. BOTTOM LEFT: In the

pouring rain, Martha Bestebreurtje hands newspapers to a ZPG worker. RIGHT: A Children's Theater Production employs the acting talents of Jamie Hollifield, Marie Leavitt, and Hayden Saunier. THIS PAGE:

TOP: Adding to the stacks of newspapers, Tim Johns puts his in the truck. BELOW LEFT: At McDonald's Mark Scott waits to order. RIGHT: After school Karen Haggard sloshes through puddles to her car.

And they can always find an activity to occupy themselves. Pandemonium livens the field as each coach rules his little corner. Mr. Craddock reigns in the auditorium as drama practices progress. Money raising and decorating for the Prom take up a Junior's spring. Sophomores nervously anticipate their first exams. Spring fever persuades Seniors to spend time outside (commonly called skipping classes). They only care about frisbee games and graduation ceremonies. The lawn transforms into a circus again, as everyone comes alive.

sures himself for a graduation gown. CENTER: Rain pelts Sheller Campbell and Kathy Hoggard, as they run to their cars. RIGHT: Guidance attendant, Becky Boggs files student schedules. THIS PAGE: TOP LEFT: The

Well, this part of our show is almost over. Everyone has worked relentlessly to present it to you.

The show seems to have gone quickly, but nothing stands still in this world, not even our circus. The next part of our extravaganza will continue in the fall, but many of our actors will be gone. The remaining actors will probably play different roles. Even the producers of the circus will be new. Players will drift apart from each other into different facets of society. Perhaps two or three will remain close, but most will lose contact with each other. Looking back through our circus each person can remember the happy times and the sad ones. So much happened here this year. The memories of social events will last forever: parties, homecoming, and the prom. Outside events shaped our circus, too. Music continued to change and Lane students changed with it. Mike Seeger conducted a country and folk workshop for those fans. Awareness toward the outside world increased.--reaction to the violence at the Olympics in Munich. Black September members murdered two United States diplomats in Khartoum, signifying a new outbreak of tension in the Middle East and causing us to worry about another war. Congress began to reshape itself, as it battled against Nixon's proposed budget. Meanwhile, at Lane the top news was the revisionment of the smoking rules. At last the new school has become more than just a dream; construction has begun. Classes continue; students come and go. But our year has been different to us.
